GOOD ROADS

INCREASE IN MOTOR VEHICLES LAST YEAR

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

On December 31, 1923, there were 15,902,177 motor vehicles in use in the United States, according to statistics collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. During the past year the number registered increased by 2,833,802 vehicles, a greater increase than in any preceding year.

This increase, which is 187,000 registrations greater than the gain in any other year, means that the public demand for road improvement, already strong, will be strengthened, and a more general use of the road, particularly in a business and commercial way, will result. As indicative of the commercial trend motor truck registrations now total over one and one-half million, the hundred-thousand mark having been passed in New York, Michigan and Illinois, and the fifty-thousand mark in Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Total registrations now exceed one million in California, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

While the owners of motor vehicles are insistent in their demand for more and better roads, the statistics show that they are bearing a very considerable part of the cost of the roads, especially of the cost of maintenance of the state highways. Gross receipts from registration fees, together with the licenses of drivers, chauffeurs, etc., amount to $28,000,000 or 23 times the amount derived from this source in 1913. During the same period motor vehicle registrations have increased 12 times.

In 35 states a gasoline tax ranging from one to four cents per gallon, is imposed. Revenue from this source, amounting to $30,300,000, is spent very largely for highway purposes. This revenue will be materially increased in many states as many states such taxes have been in effect only a few months.

Past experience seems to indicate that registrations will continue to increase materially during the present year. There is no doubt that road construction will continue at about the same rate which has been maintained for the past two years. Much of this construction will be on roads never before improved.

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky!
So when it rains, my heart rejoices;
So is it now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die!
The child is father of the man;
And I could wish my days to be
Bound each to each by natural piety.

MEATS FOR THE FAMILY

Chicken is so well liked that a different way of cooking this favorite meat will be welcomed.

Chicken en Casserole.—Cut into joints a large fat fowl or two small ones, removing as many of the bones as possible.

Put two tablespoons of olive oil, pork fat or butter into a frying pan; as soon as it is hot lay in a few pieces of chicken at a time, turning often until it is well-colored through but not brown. Take from the pan and add more chicken until all is partly cooked, adding more butter or oil as needed. Put three tablespoons of butter into the pan where the chicken was cooked, add two table-spoonfuls of flour, and when well blended turn in three cupfuls of veal stock, or chicken stock made from the bones and trimmings. Scalding the stock for one hour, add salt, then adding the feet to the bones will give the gelatin to the soup which is so desirable. Add a little onion and carrot for seasoning, add the chicken and cover the casserole, bake for one hour, or more, depending upon the age of the fowl. A spoonful of any good-flavored fruit juice may be added to give additional flavor if desired.

Serve on crisp lettuce.

Baked Chops With Vegetables.—Slice potatoes, using as many as the family usually consumes. Arrange in a large, shallow baking pan, cover with a thin layer of sliced potatoes, add salt and pepper to season and cover the top with a pork chop for each serving. Season the chops well and bake in a hot oven. When the tops of the chops are brown turn them so that they will be well broiled on both sides. Serve from the baking dish. This will also make a substantial meal with a light dessert and a salad if desired.

Chicken Baked in Milk.—Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one large onion thinly sliced; cut two young chickens into pieces for serving, cover and cook slowly, turning often, for ten minutes; then add one cupful of chicken stock and one cupful of milk. Put the stock and onion through a sieve and add one and one-half table-spoonfuls each of butter and flour and cook together. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange the chicken on a serving dish, pour the sauce around it and garnish with sliced bananas cut into diagonal slices, dipped in flour and sauted in butter.

There is only one way to get ready for immortality, and that is to love life and live it bravely and faithfully, and cheerfully if we can.—Henry Van Dyke.

Practical Jamie

"You don't mean to tell me you married Etate Spender?"

"But I do—I mean I did," replied the optimistic bridegroom.

"Why, you poor boob, your salary won't even buy her breakfast!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the optimist. "That's where I've got you. My Etate won't get up for breakfast!"—American Legion Weekly.

"Did Jamie inherit anything from his uncle?"

"Yes and no. There was nothing in the will for him, but he married the daughter of the lawyer who handled the estate."

Food for thought is often supplied by one's inability to obtain the other kind.

Good Road Notes

Never pass a street car when it is stopping, or, if the law permits, pass it very slowly past it at the legal distance.

Rural express routes are great aids where the farm is small and the milk and produce hauls are so heavy enough to justify the running of a truck to town.

The total estimated expenditures for new highways by all agencies and from all sources during 1921 amounted to more than $7,000,000. The figures for 1922 were slightly less.

It is estimated by highway experts that mileage of surfaced roads in the United States has reached at least 450,000 miles.

Modern highway transport has undoubtedly done more than any other single factor in making life on the farm brighter and easier.

A farmer must be able to move his products rapidly when the demand is active, especially if perishable, and this element of time is of vital importance to the modern farmer.

Pillars of Hercules

Gibbernet and Debot Musa on the African side were known to the ancient world as the Pillars of Hercules. The name was given to two mountains because, according to a popular legend, it was Hercules who led them apart to let the Mediterranean sea join the Atlantic ocean.

Penalty of Success

Ex-Governor Preuss was talking about success.

"At the shore," he said, "they don't consider the season a successful one unless, down to the smallest boarding house or cottage, they're all as crowded as Wave villa."

"The mistress of Wave villa said to her husband one afternoon on his return from the fish market: 'I've rented the coal bin, George. The rest of the season you'll have to sleep in the chicken house.'—Minnapolis Tribune.
