OF IMPORTANCE TO WORLD WAR VETERANS

Veterans of the World War who are suffering from tuberculosis, and from certain other diseases, should apply for compensation before January 1, 1925, according to Carl A. Goers, commander of the Groves Walker Post of the American Legion.

Even those veterans who previously have applied to the United States Veterans' Bureau and have been rejected should renew their claims, he declared, because a new law has made many such cases perfectly legal. The Commander invited all veterans to visit the next Post meeting, Thursday, December 18, where Legionaries will give assistance in preparing claims.

"It is most important that veterans should apply at once," said Commander Goers. "The time limit for their claims will soon expire. If there is any doubt in the mind of any veteran as to whether his claim comes under the act, he should get in touch with the Legion. Besides tuberculosis the diseases which are of the greatest importance are: paralysis agitans, encephalitis lethargica or amoebic dysentery. We are aware that those names may mean little to many veterans; that is why we advise all who are at all suffering from mental diseases—even those contracted through misconduct—should see us. The full provisions of the act are necessarily complicated, and we can only urge every possible beneficiary of the act to make his application immediately."

"Those who attend the meeting should have with them their discharge certificates and any correspondence which they may have had with any governmental bureau. The Reed-Johnson Act, under which these applications may be received up to December 31, 1924, was drafted by the American Legion, and is far more generous than any previous measure. Thus it is that veterans who previously have been denied their claims may now recover them."

The Legion post, besides the welfare work such as outlined, is planning a winter of constant good times for its members, it was said. The Legion is growing in popularity with veterans, and all over the state as well as locally is showing a healthy growth in membership. Many of the mistakes made in the days of "mushroom growth" have been outgrown and forgotten.

OBTAING COUNTY INFORMATION

A proposition to be decided by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors at their January meeting, and which will undoubtedly prove of educational value to our readers, is that of publishing in every newspaper in the county an itemized account of the Board's activities for the year. In the past these proceedings have been published only in the Pontiac Daily Press.

The plan, as outlined by members of the Oakland County Weekly Press Association, would mean that these proceedings should be published in ALL genuine, recognized newspapers in Oakland County; the weeklies as well as the dailies.

The argument set forth by the various county publishers is sound in its premise, and consists chiefly of the desire on the part of each newspaper to obtain an accurate report of what the Board is doing each year, to the end that each taxpayer may have a more intelligent, enlightened and sympathetic viewpoint in the matter of county government.

"The Pontiac Daily Press, having the greatest circulation of any newspaper in Oakland County, ought to continue to publish these Supervisor's proceedings," argue the officers of the Weekly Press Association, "but, since the Daily Press does not reach anything near the total number of taxpayers in the county, the only way that such knowledge may become known by all is through publication in the recognized newspapers of the county."

Most of the supervisors favor the proposition, and it is expected that each newspaper in the county will present to its readers the annual report in January.
