Ladywood Students See Government In Action

Thirteen Ladywood senior and junior girls attended a congressional workshop in Washington, D.C. this summer. The workshop consisted of small seminar groups in which the basic concepts of government were discussed by the students and instructors, with lectures by congressional members.

Among the discussion leaders were Congressman Claude Pepper of Florida and Senator Ralph Yarborough of Texas. Those attending the program were also able to receive a first-hand look at the governmental processes in action, as well as to meet their own Congressmen and Senators.

While in Washington, the group visited all the points of interest: the White House, Treasury Department, Smithsonian Institution, the F.B.I., the Washington Monument, and Arlington Cemetery. The girls were housed at Georgetown University.

LEO S. TONKIN, director of the Washington Workshops, made arrangements for the students to visit many of the embassies, including the British, Argentine, and Italian Embassies.

To close the workshop, the participants held a mock political convention, at which Mrs. S. Stassen made a personal appearance.

The Ladywood participants were Mary Wornick, Vicki Glick, Denise Zlotchewski, Mary Ann Sarma, Judi Cagavala, Alicia Nalecki, Mary Hennessy, Diane Obenski, Kathy Reinhardt.
