UNTIL THEN WE WILL BURY OUR DEAD

The name of Casimir Kaliszewski has been added to the long scroll of Detroit policemen who have sacrificed their lives in fighting the thugs and bandits who infest that city, terrorizing its citizens and in many instances wounding and cruelly murdering and wounding men, women and children.

Fortunately in this holdup in which Officer Kaliszewski lost his life the bandits were captured and will not doubt be convicted and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, which it is safe to say some of them will not serve. It is quite likely that the palms of Detroit pardon brokers are already itching for the fat fees that these cases promise.

When the legislature is aroused by public sentiment to a point where it will consider the welfare and safety of the public preference to the wishes of bonding companies, pardon brokers and criminal lawyers, banditry and murder will be made less popular.

Among the thugs captured last week was one who was awaiting trial on a similar charge and at liberty on a $20,000 bail bond furnished by a bonding company. When persons charged with high crimes are compelled to furnish individual bail bonds, signed by reputable citizens, not professional bondsmen; when the state board of pardons is abolished or curbed in its powers; when only reputable attorneys are permitted to appear before pardon boards in behalf of convicts and then at a fixed fee; when the defendant in a criminal trial shall be required to give the prosecuting attorney reasonable notice with names of witnesses in support of an alleged alibi; when criminal procedure is stripped of technicalities that do not protect the innocent but serve only as a means of escape for the guilty; then will come a lessening of crime.

Until that time the state will be comparatively safe for thugery; the criminal lawyer will wax fat, bonding companies will flourish and the public and police departments will bury their dead.

OLD FASHIONED HIRER GIRL LOCATED

An exchange asks: "What has become of the old-fashioned hired girl who used to get up at 4:00 o'clock on a Monday morn and start the family wash?"

At 12:00 noon Saturdays she can be seen emerging from the factory carrying in her hand a fat pay envelope. At 8:00 p. m. you will find her occupying a seat in the orchestra circle arrayed like the queen of Sheba.

BIG DAILIES VANISHING

There seems to be a race on between Mr. Munsey of New York, and Mr. Curtis of Philadelphia, to see who can buy the largest number of big metropolitan dailies. It may be that in a few years four or five men will own and control all the large dailies in our country. The country weeklies and small city dailies remain the big independent group of newspapers. There are some fourteen thousand of these published and read in the homes of the people and reaching a majority of the population.

COMMUNICATED

To the Editor: I find time each week to read the Enterprise and note with pleasure that Farmington has progressed to a point where you find it practical to print the Enterprise all at home.

I trust however, that Farmington will not over night attain to that superlatively degree of progressiveness typified nowadays by a restless motorist citizenry rushing hither skelter in a great hurry to get nowhere in particular.

Quiet, peaceful towns like Farmington have a well defined definite place in the American scheme of things, the shallow wise-cracks or sophisticated big town jokersmiths to the contrary notwithstanding.

There is a happy medium between rural stagnation and super-civic squalor and to the average man or woman sated of the big city's static, towns like Farmington with their smiling countryside are God's own green oases.

To live in the country and work in the city is no modern fad. I have never understood that Jehovah furnished a flat for Adam and Eve. I think it was Mark Twain who said that men ought to get better acquainted with the soil, they'll be a long time under it! A greswome joke in truth, but containing a grain of wisdom in it.

Man admittedly has but one tie to live; why, then do he sweat and toil and trouble themselves and disturb nature's balance generally? So that they may obtain for themselves and those near and dear to them peace, quiet, and comfort. It is only in the modern, quiet, suburban villages, and in their peaceful environs that one may truly get in touch with Nature's universal rhythmic harmony.

I hold no brief for the lazy lout who is seemingly so fond of growing things that he lets his door yard run to weeds, but I do honestly think that many of us moderns lose sight of man's ultimate destiny and the soul part of ourselves, when we turn our backs on the green open spaces and live the big city round and super-artificial big city surroundings.

Sincerely, Ben C. Hughes.

SUMMER MONTHS DANGEROUS TO INFANTS

Summertime is the danger period for the baby under one year, is the warning sent out by state health authorities. Digestive diseases are the chief cause for the higher infant death rate which is noted during the summer months as compared with the winter months when respiratory diseases are more prevalent. In the year 1923 death during the summer months claimed 211 more babies than during the winter months, the infant mortality rate being 35.2 per 1000 for the summer as against 75.7 for the winter, making a rate of 80.4 for the year. For the summer months of 1924, the infant mortality rate fell to 67.4, with a total of 72.2 for the year, which is considerably reduced from the rate for ten years ago, 85.6.

Intestinal diseases as diarrhea and denteritis; are the greatest and enteritis, are the greatest during the summer months, causing about 20 per cent of the deaths among children under five. Food contamination and flies are largely responsible for these diseases. For this reason babies should be breast-fed if possible for the first nine months. The milk for bottle-fed babies should be brought to the boiling point, even though pasteurized, to make sure that all bacteria are killed, then rapidly cooled and placed on ice until used. The infant old enough to receive other foods than milk may have fruit juices, cereals, and strained cooked green vegetables. All food for the young child, including milk and fruits except orange juice, should be cooked. Even the drinking water should be boiled to avoid typhoid fever and other intestinal infections.

Protect the food supply from dust, fermentation and flies. Flies are responsible for conveying all sorts of diseases. The use of screens and prevention of breeding places will save many babies, as much as possible, except in the hottest part of the day. He should be kept clean; a daily bath is essential.

There will be a basket lunch at noon. Coffee will be served. In addition to this there will be a refreshment stand.
