Day Dedicated To Grand-Dads

For the eighth consecutive year, grandfathers will be the focus attention on their own special Grand-Dad's Day, Sept. 13.

This year is expected to draw greater observance, according to the Grand-Dad's Day Council, Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to the promotion of respect and appreciation for the grand-dads.

Each year, an increasing number of activities mark the day. Foremost among them are the Grand-Dads Golf Tournaments held by more than 2,500 golf clubs, with more than 80,000 grandfathers participating.

All entry fees to the tournaments are donated to a local or national charity, making the tournaments significant fund-raisers.

With more civic and other groups taking part in the movement to make the day an official day of national observance has grown and is getting recognition from men such as Mayor Lindsay of New York.
