Students react to a night in slammer

THE GIRLS, who have many friends at Catholic Central, could be seen hid-ing their faces as they were driven from the school parking lot, much to the delight of their parents.

"They were embarrassed but kept joking and laughing in the car and during the booking process, which included fingerprinting and mug shots," he said. "I think they were joking to ease their worry, and on one occasion some tears slipped through their laughter."

Following several unsuccessful tele-phone calls, Boyda placed them in a jail cell together. Their conversation could be heard through an intercom system. The girls continued to joke and laugh as their parents listened intently, laughing often.

In their time of trouble, the girls re-alized they wouldn't be able to attend a Catholic Central hockey game Thurs-day night. Sandy expressed a concern about having a terrible profite in refer-ence to the mug shots. They noted Boyda hadn't read them their rights.

They said the beds were hard. And ne of them let loose with a scream, in hich she demanded, "I want out of here now."

But before being released, it was dinner time. The parents dined in a nearby restaurant, while their daughters had a frozen TV-style dinner in their cell.

"WE PAID enough to entitle them to cause they have a sense of humor." Evidence suggests, however, that the girls had some moments of anguish.

Consider this written statement, penned by Chris Cotter during the booking process: "I think you're making a very big, stupid mistake. This is very unfair. I hope that you are happy with what you are doing because I do not know what you think you are accomplishing by all this trouble you have caused me." "WE PAID enough to entitle them to dinner and breakfast, but we were not going to let them spond the night in going lail." said Sharon Hoffman. "We thank lail." as the spond the real thing." It's only a dry run to show them what could happen if they continue on their present path." Mary Ellen Cotter said joinings. "The said of the said of t

WHEN IS IT TIME TO TAKE

LESS MEDICINE?
Arthritis is a condition that is constantly changing and it can be reasonable to question if your thorapy is appropriate for your present condition, in many instances, by careful monitoring, you can determine the medication schedule you currently need.
Assume that over a three menth period, your arthritis has been stable wille you are taking nine aspirins a day on a schedule of 3 tablets three times a day. To determine your present aspirin needs, begin dropping your dose by taking one less tablet, going from nine tablets a day to eight tablets. Stay at this dosage for 3 weeks while noting the offect on your joints. If you continue to feel as well with eight tablets as you did with nine, then drop down again by one tablet. Repeat this process unit! you reach a point where pain roturns. Then go up one tablet and use that amount as the basis for long the process of the passis for this appreach is applicable to other antiarthritic drugs bosides aspirin.
