

Handicapper's helper

Rochelle Baronick of Farmington Hills sits at the new Visualtek closed-circuit TV unit, which was acquired recently by the Farmington Community Lions Club for use by visually handicapped students. The equipment reads printed or written material, magnifies it as desired and displays it on the monitor. The Farmington Area Lions Club assisted in financing the project. Baronick is enrolled in Michigan State University's Handicapper Program.

Nurse-aid training set

Prompted by an increasing need in the community for home health care services, the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross is launching a new course to train individuals in the skills needed for employment as a nurse aid in a hospital, nursing home or private home, or as a home health aide in a home health agency.

A pilot course will be offered beginning July 30. The 100-hour course will require four hours of class participation five days a week for five weeks. Fee for the course is $100 per person. Additional information may be obtained by calling 494-2875 or 494-2876.

Red Cross alarmed over blood shortage

A critical shortage of blood faces the community, according to the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Region.

While summer is traditionally a difficult time to collect blood, this year has been especially bad with collections running close to borderline for some time, Red Cross sources said.

The recent holiday and several area shortages have left the blood supply at a critical low. The daily minimum required inventory for the most common blood type — O positive — is 325 units. On July 6, the inventory contained only 31 units of this blood type, officials said.

Several area hospitals have indicated that they have decided to postpone elective surgery in an effort to conserve blood.

Recent continued blood collection problems have required importing more than 1,000 units of blood in the last month from outside the Southeastern Michigan Region for use in area hospitals, according to Dr. A. William Shafer, director of Red Cross Blood Services.

"We are currently unable to import blood for our region's use because there is no excess blood available in other regions," Shafer said.

All types of blood are needed, especially type O negative blood.

Blood can be donated by anyone in good general health between the ages of 17 and 65 who weighs at least 110 pounds. Donating blood is painless and takes less than an hour, Red Cross officials said.

Nine permanent donor centers are located throughout Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties. Donor centers have evening and Saturday hours for donors' convenience.

For information regarding the location of the nearest donor center or to make an appointment, call 494-2800.
