"At the very end, she was making miniature Christmas ornaments," said her sister Joanne Lu-ers Hennessy of Livonina. Hennessy is known for her miniature doll house room settings.

The two sisters often teamed up in creating doll house settings.

"Her dolls were in all of my rooms. In fact, when she made a doll, she gave the first version to me," Hennessy said.

Miniature dolls were her specialty CREATING SCULPTURED miniatures was just one part of a varied career in art for Foucher, who was a past president of the Palette Guild.

"It was fascinating to be in her workshop," her sister recalled. "It was like being in Santa's workshop."

anop."

In addition to miniatures, Foucher did portrait dolls. She sold her creations through a mail order business and through various area doll shops.

In addition to Hennessy, Foucher leaves her husband Harry; a son Raymond of Lakeland, Fia.; another sister, Mary Luers Knop of Romeo; and a brother, Richard of Sterling Heights.
