They keep on cooking while lights are out

Continued from Page 1

Salon employees moved chairs out-side for the customers. Korica joked about charging the customers for the "inatural tanning booth" in the alley be-hind the salon.

"So there were no dryers. But we didn't close up. We did as much as we could."

SALON EMPLOYEES called cus-tomers to let them know about the situ-ation. "We called them and told them what was going on, but most of them still came in anyway," Korica said.

Police get system The new system will also help in keeping a record of response ilmes. City council members authorized a waiver of the competitive bidding pro-cess for the equipment purchase. That or which will be available for use. THE OLDER SYSTEM also desn't have an instantaneous playback (fea-tur'the new machine, the dispatcher can immediately play it back." Such a feature allows a dispatcher to check any missed information, such as an ad-dress or name.

Continued from Page 1 has been giving us some maintenance problems," Deadman said. The new system will include eight channels, all of which will be available for use.

The "SPOTLIGHT" is on

EAT PUMPS . SALES . SERVICE . SHOWROOM . SHOWER STALL

An A C CARL but only partially so – calls could be made, but he telphone was working, made, but he telphone wasn't ringing open with the telphone crisis by pick-tick and see it agree was there. There agrees a bottle of champages for mr of spice it a bottle of champages for the set of the sold. "No won-tel the set of the sold. "No won-duct the set of the sold. "No won-duct the sold that to go home. "The counters, they were so note a boot it They were very nice. I've new-er done anybody's hair in the alley. "The even do a bottle on the morning in the dark," Korlea said. "She looked good."

V BOBST/M

the power was lost at her Salon St. Georges hair salon.

