graph. And through her use and choice of color, she builds the sense of mystery that is already present in the photographs.

Winston uses a 35mm camera and a cold light enlarger. The latter leaves her work with little if any grain. She calls her process "real straightforward."

The show also includes four hand-colored photographs, the image is the same, only the color is changed, and several from other series she has done or is working on.

She is presently trying to find a publisher for a book she's doing.

Pierce Street Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 217 Pierce, Birmingham.

Local artists chosen in competition

Eight Michigan artists have been commissioned to create major works of art for the building which will house the State of Michigan Library, Museum and Archives.

The local artists in the group are: Richard Kozlow, Birmingham; Glen Michaels, Troy; and George Ortman, Bloomfield Hills.

The others are: David Barr, Northville; Sergio DeGusti, Detroit; Norma Penchansky Glasser, Ann Arbor; Mary Hatch, Kalamazoo; and Alfred Hinton, Ann Arbor.

These artists will work with the project architect, William Kessler, on all phases of the building which is scheduled for groundbreaking this summer.

According to E. Roy Scott, director of the sponsoring Commission on Art in Public Places, "This project is a 'first' for our state. The Blanchard administration has recommended that funds be earmarked for the inclusion of artifacts. The artist and architect will be involved in all planning stages to determine the most advantageous integration of the finished works in the building."

Commission chairman, Roy Slade, said he foresees this as the first of many state-funded buildings which will incorporate the works of gifted Michigan artists.

Slides submitted by the 250 artists in the statewide competition, will be part of a permanent Slide Bank and will be automatically considered in the jurying process for future state-funded buildings.

All Michigan artists are invited to submit slides and resumes to the Commission offices: Suite P-120, 1200 Sixth St., Detroit, MI 48226.
