

Cranbrook graduates show their best

Art by Cranbrook Academy of Art master's candidates in the nine departments is on display at the Cranbrook Museum through Sept. 15. The show represents the best work in all departments selected by Roy Slade, academy president and the artists-in-residence. Shown, starting from left, is a segment of the exhibit: ceramic mural, "Like a Road" and stone-ware "Cane" by Brian A. Fioranillo and an untitled drawing by Anat Shifan. The museum is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday, 500 Lane Pine, Bloomfield Hills.

Orchestra has new president

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra recently elected new officers. They are: Barbara Diles-Zohl, president; Ward Lampshire, executive vice president; Ken Eaton Jr., first vice president; Joan Stern, treasurer; and Isabel Forester, secretary.

Plans for the 1985-86 season will be announced next month.

Diles-Zohl said, "We are doing everything possible to reduce our costs without jeopardizing the high artistic quality of the orchestra."

The new president comes to the orchestra having just returned from a European tour with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra as their public relations manager.

To serve on board

Those elected to the board of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association at the annual meeting are: Jane Conway, Bernice Forrest, Pam Kiesel, Victor L. Klein, John Monnich, Joyce Nagel, Mickey Ratcliff and Evie Wheat.

Continuing on the board are: Elaine Borruso, Olga Chao, Shirley Gower, Vance Hanna, Doris Marshall, Ray Phillippi, Alice Slawson and Rosemary Squires.

Officers who also serve on the board are: Leo Shea, president; June Wirth, vice president; Evelyn Brundrett, recording secretary; and Richard Simoni, treasurer.

Ken Gross, executive director of the art association, said there were more than 3,300 students enrolled in more than 400 classes.
