

Former Farmington cop appointed Canton chief

By Diane Gale
staff writer

John Santomauro came out the winner Tuesday night in the long, painstaking race to Canton's police chief seat.

Supervisor James Poole nominated the 35-year-old director of public safety for Pittsfield Township, and the board gave unanimous approval. He nudged out Ed Glomb, police chief for the Village of Franklin and Bingham Farms, who was among the three finalists. The third candidate, who asked that his name not be made public, was unable to attend a board interview last week and was eliminated from the running at that time.

"There were many, many candidates who were qualified," Poole said before announcing the winner. "It's been a long time, and a few dollars have been spent to reach a decision. I can only nominate one."

SANTOMAURO REPLACES Jerry Cox, who resigned in January 1985 following a study citing the department as being in a "crisis" situation. The report — prepared by Rod Bartell of the Pennsylvania consulting firm Bartell and Bartell — said the police department needed a "strong, management-type of person" with a dominating influence, a high energy level and an aggressive, assertive style of management.

Santomauro, who was among 182 applicants, will be paid $38,000 annually. A $500 moving expense also was awarded at Tuesday's meeting.

In 1969, Santomauro began his police career in Farmington after serving 13 months as a marine in Vietnam. He earned a Navy Commendation Medal, the Vietnam Cross of Gallantry and the Purple Heart Medal.

He climbed through the ranks and was appointed Farmington's deputy public safety director in 1976 when he was 27. By taking that newly created post, he was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant.

IN JANUARY 1982 Santomauro was named police chief of Pittsfield Township, a community south of Ann Arbor. Two years later he was appointed Pittsfield Township public safety director, and was responsible for a 90-percent consolidated administration. That was his last position before taking the Canton post.

Santomauro earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice at Madonna College in Livonia. He taught "various police-related courses" at Detroit Criminal Justice Institute, Washburn Criminal Justice Center, Oakland Community College and Washburn Community College, said Dan Durack, Canton personnel director.

Glomb also served in Vietnam and was a Green Beret. He has worked as Village of Franklin and Bingham Farms police chief since March 1982. From January 1971 through March 1982, Glomb, 38, rose through the ranks at the Wayne County Sheriff's Department from deputy to sergeant and finally lieutenant, Durack said.
