

Law firm doubles office space with move to Northwestern

The law firm of Kaufman and Payton has moved into offices at the new Northwestern Financial Center in Farmington Hills.

Kaufman and Payton, a Michigan insurance law firm, has relocated its principal offices to the recently opened $8 million Northwestern Financial Center in Farmington Hills.

The new facility more than doubles the firm's office space, allowing it to increase capabilities and services.

The firm will occupy 14,000 square feet in the newly constructed 100,000-square-foot building on Northwestern Highway at 15 Mile Road.

The rapidly expanding firm, which previously maintained its principal offices at the American Center in Southfield, also has offices in Detroit and Grand Rapids.

The firm is active in such areas as commercial, product and medical liability, real estate, liquor liability and international law. It represents insurance companies, international and national corporations, institutions and real estate interests.

"WITHIN TWO years, we expect to grow from our present 15 attorneys to 30 attorneys — internally, through recruitment at some of the nation's best law schools, and externally, through acquisition of firms and other groups of attorneys," according to the firm's principal, Alan Jay Kaufman.

"This new building provides the space and technology we need to attain this growth and expand our areas of service to our clients."

Kaufman and Payton's offices will incorporate computerized systems, electronic typing capability, an expanded law library, several conference rooms and other facilities designed to service the growing law firm.

The building's architect is Kenneth Neumann of Kenneth Neumann/Robert Greger & Associates.

The exterior of the building was constructed by Edw. E. Singer & Son Building Company.

The building offers security and energy systems. A security control room electronically monitors all entrances to the building. Doors can be locked or opened from this one central location. Heating and air conditioning are controlled by high-technology systems.
