Health-care facility holds grand opening

More than 300 area residents were on hand recently to help celebrate the grand opening of MercyCare, an immediate health care facility in Farmington Hills.

Child LD. registrations, free blood pressure checks and prize drawings were all part of the grand opening events.

Those attending got an opportunity to meet the MercyCare medical staff and tour the facility, which offers immediate health care without an appointment.

John Kerr, executive vice president of MercyCare, was pleased with the community's support for the center's grand opening, and looks forward to providing the kind of medical services that will benefit the area's residents.

"With the increase in the number of working couples and the need for prompt medical service and extended hours, many people don't know where to go when they are faced with a minor medical emergency," Kerr said. "At MercyCare, we cater to the medical needs of the communities we serve. We are open 365 days a year with extended office hours (from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.), and no appointment is needed."
