Sprucing up

Members of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1784 have spent the past eight months sprucing up Shiawassee City Park as part of the requirements for the Girl Scout Challenge Gold Award, comparable to the Boy Scouts' Eagle Award. Saturday, Girl Scouts (from left) Claudia Osowski, Stacy Sukockas and Stephanie Ellis landscaped the park entrance at Powar and Shiawassee. Previously, the girls cleaned the woods, stream, sandbox, playground and ball fields. This is the first time the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council has approved a joint Gold Award project. The project has the Farmington City Council's blessing. Local firms donated the evergreens.

Funeral home gains a Finnish associate

The first president of the Finnish Center Association, Matt Potti, is bringing his family and business to the Farmington area.

From a 35-year location at Six Mile and Evergreen in Old Redford, the native Finn and his son Paul will bring their family funeral business to the Thayer Rock Funeral Home in downtown Farmington. Both will act as associates and consultants to current owner Bob Rock, giving the business eight total employees.

Noah Potti held office from 1966-67 for the Farmington-based Finnish group of more than 2,000 members, according to son Paul Potti. Old Redford, now part of Detroit, once had the largest population of Scandinavian and Finnish residents in the area. Most have moved west, many into the Farmington area, he said.

With this movement, came the dedication of a new Finnish cultural center on Eight Mile in 1974. There's also an active Swedish Club in Farmington Hills, Paul Potti said.

"WE HAD active plans to build a funeral home in Farmington Hills," Paul Potti said, "but an association with Thayer-Rock developed that will relieve the 24-hour pressure for all of us."

When an 800-square-foot renovation to the Thayer-Rock building is complete, the Pottis hope to make the move to Farmington, probably in 30-50 days.

Rock joined the family business as a partner in 1978. The business's founder and community leader, Howard Thayer, died three years ago.

Car safety seats offered

Infant and toddler car safety seats are available at Providence Hospital Novi Center at a nominal fee to low-income residents of Oakland County.

Under the hospital's "Wee Care" car safety seat program, 35 infant and 25 toddler seats have been allocated to the Novi center for community use. A $10 deposit and a $15 rental fee is charged and attendance at a 30-minute educational program on the use of the seat is required.

Car-seat rentals can be arranged through Liz Elliott, medical records supervisor at Novi Center, who can be reached at 471-0300. Appointments can be made for Wednesday mornings. "Wee Care" is a project of the Community Health Education Department of Providence Hospital.
