Peanut Butter Players stage 'Tom Sawyer'

Peanut Butter Players, Detroit's only professional children's luncheon theater, appear in "Tom Sawyer," a musical adaptation of the Mark Twain classic every Saturday and Sunday until mid-December in Mama Mia's, 9361 Cooley Lake Road, Union Lake. Lunch is served at 1 p.m. Show time is 2 p.m. Reservations, at $7.95 each, are necessary by calling 953-1535, or 953-3093.

Leading roles in "Tom Sawyer" are played by Vito Guerra and Danny Gurwin, who were seen here when the players staged "Snoopy," held over for two months last spring in Mercy High School's Genesis Theatre. The two are also now playing in Michigan Open Theatre's production of "I Pagliacci." All of the players have gained their experience on Detroit-area stages. The play follows Twain's novel closely in plot and character and is offered in celebration of Mark Twain's 150th anniversary. Aunt Polly, Huck Finn, Muff Potter, Becky Thatcher and all of Tom's friends appear in the production.

Heavy pressure suggests persistence

Dear Mrs. Green

I love your column. It is the first I look for every Monday. I'm aware of the classes you offer through the community, but would like to know if you teach a correspondence course? Also, do any of your programs lead to certification?

As a teacher, I would like to understand my students through the study of handwriting. I'm also curious to learn how changing a handwriting trait can change a personality trait. I am 33 years old and right handed. And I would love to be analyzed.

M.F. Livonia
Dear M.F.

Thanks for your letter. I appreciate your interest in my column and graphology in general. While I do not teach a correspondence course, I do teach a graphology class in the Livonia Community Education Department. Schoolcraft and Oakland Community Colleges are also currently offering these classes. Upon completing three levels of instruction, you can apply to the American Association of Handwriting Analysts in Chicago for certification. After you pass their examination, they will certify you and you can start to use your knowledge to help others. As a teacher of young people, you have excellent opportunity to help them understand themselves and also offer encouragement where it is most needed.

And now I'll develop your personality picture. The stylized delineation of letter formations suggest a person who is creative, individualistic, original and highly imaginative. Dr. Morris L. Stein, a psychologist and a professor at New York University has written a two-volume book on creativity. In it he describes the traits which are important ingredients of the creative individual. To quote him, "They are high on curiosity and intuitive. They are also empathic, persistent and less conventional than their peers." All of this can be said about you.

NOW LET US ADD the dynamism and persistence found in your heavy pressure, elongated and high letters and we know your strong enthusiasm will carry the whole classroom along on its contagion.

You have been exposed to culture and are not a stranger to some of the finer things of life. Music, art, drama are areas that have probably enriched your life.

You are an independent young woman with avant-garde thinking. Although there is rather strong female influence from your formative years, you are not hidebound by traditional ways.

A retentive memory is here. Also good attention to details.

A fluency with words makes you a skillful conversationalist. But you can also be direct and call a spade a spade when necessary. Your full loops add color and a sense of drama for anything to which you apply your energy.

YOUR MIND IS WELL organized and you can plan and implement your daily goals. A busy person with many activities is suggested. Currently you may even be a tad overly involved.

Personal criticism makes you vulnerable to what people say and think about you. Others probably are not too aware of this as you usually have an aura of poise and control about you. You harbor intense feelings that stay with you for long periods of time.

There is also a practical side to you. You enjoy the creature comforts. Money and what it will provide is important to your happiness.

I would be extremely interested to know what you teach. Also hope you will avail yourself to a local graphology class.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed through this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist. Please use full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in black ink in the first person singular. Age, signature and handedness are all helpful. Feedback is always welcome.
