

Cookies Welcome As Gift

There are all kinds of beautiful shapes and colors of cookie jars. Some of you may have seen the one that looks like a wishing well and on it says, "I wish I had a cookie." Keeping the cookie jar filled may be a problem as everyone enjoys the tasty homemade varieties.

Don't forget about the members of your family or your friends going to college or into the service. They wish they had a cookie from someone who cares.

IT'S ALWAYS GREAT to be on the receiving end, especially when the package contains cookies.

If you are mailing cookies, be sure to mail only those which will stand the trip. Soft cookies are better for mailing than crisp ones. Crisp cookies will crumble easily.

The proper package is also necessary when you are mailing cookies. Cookies must be carefully wrapped to stay fresh. You could use a strong cardboard box or a metal container.

Before packing the cookies, line the container with waxed paper or foil. Put a layer of crumpled paper in the bottom of the box for a cushion. Wrap cookies in pairs with their backs together. The wrapper should be vapor proof material.

Place heavier cookies in the bottom of the box. To keep them from getting jumbled during travel, stuff popcorn, crushed paper, puffed cereal or miniature marshmallows between the packages of cookies. A cushion is needed on top of the cookies, also.

BE SURE you take extra care in taping the box and putting the name and address on the package. Label, "Fragile. Handle with Care."
