Decorating with evergreens taught in 1-session workshops

Ruth McKinnon and Maggie Dull will have a large stock of fresh evergreens and some new ideas for holiday decorating for participants in their annual pre-Christmas workshops Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 5-7 in First Presbyterian Church of Farmington. Participants have a choice of four class times. The workshops begin at 7 p.m. Thursday; at 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Friday; and at 9 a.m. Saturday. Each class runs about 2 1/2 hours in the church at 26185 Farmington Road, and each class has a number of limited reservations. During each session participants will complete one large balsam wreath to take home. They will get some help in learning how to make various centerpieces, how to decorate with fresh evergreens and how to keep the greens fresh through the holidays. Cost for the class and materials, including the trim for the balsam wreath, is $15. Fresh Oregon holly and other fresh evergreens will be available for purchase at wholesale prices. Reservations are taken by McKinnon at 661-4911 or Dull at 626-4911.

Franklin decorates with candlelight

The Franklin Village Merchants Association announces the 1985 Christmas schedule for its Annual Candlelight Walk. Every Thursday 2:30-9 p.m. through Dec. 10, the streets of Franklin Village will be decorated with candlelight and holiday trim. Participating merchants will offer free refreshments, strolling carolers and Christmas music. Shops will feature handmade and unique gift ideas for the holiday season. Santa Claus and his elves will be visiting the weekly festivities. During these evenings the merchants are asking visitors, to the village to bring canned foods to participating stores.
