An essay could be written on modular construction: pro and con. Allow me to escape, however, with one passing observation:
The day will never some when every home in the Farmington area will be constructed of bricks individually placed on sites by massons. In fact, there will be fewer and fewer homes constructed by masons.
Thus, does it make any ference if an atuninum-steel the state of the masses. The state of the st fances? Build a fence and the program; will self-feetract in program; will self-feetract in the self-evident. This, also, should be self-evident, but it's not that bowlaus in the fence proponents. Although it troubles me, I can accept the public arguments for the fence plan at face value and sleep well.

I cannot agree with the arguments but am tolerant enough to led each man beat his own drums. But, somehow, it strikes me the fence scheme is only a cover for ideas one dare not express in public.

only a cover for ideas one dare not express in public.

ANOTHER OBJECTION raised which befuddles my small mind is that the counseling center will be a "temporary building" and temporary buildings are bad for Farmington.

This argument is being raised even though the "portable" building will be located upon a foundation, secured permanently, and connected to water and sewer service. How can a building be temporary if you have to bust apart its foundation, secured to a foundation, how will the center be more if you have to bust apart its foundation in order to move any different structural many different structural many different structural raised and the men and the content be many different structural raised and the men and the content be more it takes to transport it from the present site to the Rap Line site. Once transported, it will be a permanent-building.

THE ARGUMENTS against a modular building for Rap Line, also, are not distressing on the twintace. This objection is raised not out of opposition to Rap Line, particularly but to modulars as a type of construction. modular construction have to on with a drug prevention program?

It seems to me some politicians in the Farmington community have contract the subject while discussing stay line. Present conversations have wandered far from the criginal talks about "Why Drugse".

Let's address ourselves to our original questions. Do we have a drug problem in Farmington? What are we going to do about 17.

what are we going to do about it?

This week is a good time to ask those questions again. It we can answer them again, and if answers are the same as six months ago, then there should be common agreement that the path chosen needs moral support.

Months ago, when these questions were being asked, this writer said it would take guts to examine the drug scene and take some realistic steps on a community level to attempt a solution.

community level to attempt solution.

My memory may fail me, but it seems an attempt was made. But I have not seen any real guts.

I have heard only doubts, quizzling, petty bickering, fears and all the other ingredients necessary to build a nine-foot stone wall.

We, the officials of Farming-ton Baseball for Boys, want to thank all of you city fans and also the township people for their support of our little, league team in South Farming-ton.

meetings.

On one occasion he made the statement he was (fred of hearing people complain.

Now to these same people, it's quite apparent that you must live in a section of the township that does not have too many problems.

To set the record straight, what has Nolan, or for that matter, what has any member of the Township Board done to help solve the problems for the majority of citizens south of 10 Mile?

On several occasions, Nolan was asked to meet with groups to discuss problems, especially on road conditions, and he was alwys too busy to attend.

On other occasions, he was asked by an organization in Farmington Township to at-

Now to you tolks who don't know Mrs. Vighee: I suggest you attend the Farmington Township meetings on a regular basis and you'll find out when the summer was vignos who took the time to look into township affairs, we'd have a better place to'live. Hurrah for Mrs. Catherine Vignoe!
I would like to mention to all the people who wrote the Farmington Enterprise & Observer in defense of Tom Nolan that on several occasions he has been rude at township meetings.
