'Good Citizens' command the spotlight — 5B

Farmington Observer

Volume 97 Number 27

Farmington, Michigan

Twenty-live cents

If you have a news item or idea for a feature story or an tion picture with a Farming our downtown office at 3320. Grand River, Farmington 48024.

BUILDING a new home in Farmington Hills?

If you are, or are considering it, the Farmington Hills Crimo
Prevention Unit can offer helpful advice to make your new residence more secure.
There are minor alterations that

There are minor alterations that can be introduced at little or no cost before construction is finished to make your home more burglar-proof. "We can look at your blueprints, come out to the construction site or just offer suggestions over the phone," said Christ Cogar, unit technician. For more information about this free service, call 474-8181.

ATTENTION, Farmington-

ATTENTION, Farmingtonarea tree lovers.
The Nestonal Arbor Day Foundation (NADF) will give 10 free trees to people who become members during January 1997 Colorado blue spree, a rest in alle, a white flowering doywood, a red oak, a European mountain ash, a black walnut, as fluer maple, a Norway spruce, a green ash and a sugar maple.

maple.
The 6- to 12-inch trees will be shipped, postage paid, with planting instructions, between Feb. 1 and

May 31.

NADF is a non-profit group dedicated to encouraging tree

Memberships cost $10. For details, write NADA, 100 Arbor, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

KUDOS are in order.
Douglas Arrington of Farmington Hills has earned a master of science degree in public administration from Shippensburg University, Shippensburg, Pa.

HE'S honored.
North Farmington High School graduate George Fornin was initiated into the Sigma Pi Sigma National Physics Honor Society in recognition of high scholarship in physics at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanii.

MOVING up.
Pert. 1st Class Tim Kibler of Farmington Hills has completed a
Farmington Hills has completed a Function of the Company of the Company Function of Monterey, Calif. He is a Fresidio of Monterey, Calif. He is a Function of Farmington High School.

MOVING on. MOVING on. William Cullen Jr., a 1980.
Farmington Hartson High School graduate, now of Marine City.
earned backelor of science degrees in blochemistry and physiology from Eastern Michigan University, Ypalianti.
He plans to attend Wayne State University Medical School, Detroit.

ON the dean's list.
Two students from the Farmington area, Audrey Barton and Juliame Lynne, made the dean's list at the Detroit College of.
Business for the fall quarter.

A NEW appointee:
Farmington City Council Monday
amed Heritage Lane resident Herbert Cumbo for be assessed, board of review for a three-pear term beginning Jan. 11 He has worked in the real estate field for 12

FOOTNOTES: Did you kin he Farmington area is within the louge River, Watershed? 324 1 The river meanders from northwest to southeast act Farmington and Farming Township

Farmington Moratorium on massage parlors OK'd

Inquiries from several massage parlor operators interested in Farmington business locations prompted regulatory action Monday by the Farmington City Coul.

Two ordinances were introduced, cest and investigative measures implemented, and a 90-day monatorium placed on occupancy permits for massage-related businesses.

The moratorium gives city offi-clais time to consider potential loca-

Improved reading is the intent

"The home is still the most import-ant school — and the parent is still the most important teacher."

ant school — and the parent is still the most important teacher."

So says former high school teacher and Redford Township resident Amy Clarke Hamilia, regional coordinator for the PATH (Parents and Teachers Helping) reading gram piloted duractor and the part of the Path (Parents and Teachers Helping). She said 86 percent of a child's waking hours are spent at home and only 14 percent at school, so parental involvement in reading habits its extremely important.

important.

Parents today are more aware and are joining school districts in stressing the educational basics of reading, writing and math, she added.

related businesses in Farmington, City Manager Robert Deadman told councilmen. There currently are no massage parlors operating in Farm-massage parlors operating in Farm-ington.

The Planning Commission will discuss this question at a public hearing Monday, Jan. 13. Under con-sideration is restriction of massage business interests to C-3 heavy com-mercial zoning areas, with "spe-cial exception use" limitations. Deadman said.

These husinesses would be proble-

These businesses would be prohibited from the city's central business district and commercial districts zoned C-2, under the proposal.

ness district and commercial onricts zoned C2, under the proposal.

"BASED ON the experience in other communities, it would appear the operations of massage parlors would have similar detrimental effects on a business community as (have) other businesses, which have typically been classified as offering adult enterdalument," Deadman Allegations of health spar-related prositution surfaced recently in neighbring Farmington-Hills and other communities.

The two ordinances would require massage-related businesses to be licensed by the city, with approved applications for each masseuse or masseur on file, and subject them to a department of public safety invesitgation. Application fees would be $60 for the owner and $20 for each person performing massages, according to the proposed ordinance.
Deadman said the investigation will assure that applicants:

• are free from contagious and communicable diseases,

• do not have a history of criminal behavior,

• are who they profess to be, and

• have not been denied or had a lecase revoked in the near past.

THE INVESTIGATIONS are similar to those conducted for other licensed businesses in the city, Direc-tor of Public Safety Frank Lauhaff

An initial massage business li-cense (ee was set at $100, with regu-

An icebreaker

Big fan of people: that's Ernie

Whether at work in his deli or dabbling in other creative interests, Ernie Ajlouny is always on stage. His mixing of theater fantasy and husiness reality is interewen, drawing his interest for people to the forefront, he said.

The "curtain goes up" at 11:30 am. each day at Dagwood's Dell in the Downtown Farmington Center, where all the props are in place for a lunchtime performance. He performs center stage at the dell counter, with his customers as the audience.

ter, with his customers are needed.

The businessman's life, from his beginnings in Detroit to his present activities in downtown Farmington, has been a happy mix of working in the family food business, working with Motown greats like the Temptations and Smokey Robinson and people

the Miracles, writing comedy and music and acting in local theatre music and acting in local theatre productions.

Allouny started in the food business 33 years ago, when he was 1 and "had to stand on milk crates to reach the scales;" he said.

BY THE age of 17, Allouny owned his own operation, working and going to school. He has since owned six food-related stores and worked with some large food processing companies, such as Hy-Grade.

But food wasn't the 11-year-old's only love. He learned to juggle lemost at Detroit's Eastern Market, leading to an interest in magic and, eventually, comedy routines at local boys clubs in the 1950s.

As an 18-year-old, his love of the stage and activities with his church holir led him to audition and gain a spot with a rhythm and blues quintet street group, which contracted with Motown for two years, but never gave up his food industry work.

"I was good at overything I touched," he said. "And look at what of the work of the contraction of the contr

Ajjouny's father reminded him "people have to eat three meals a day — you will always make a liv-ing in the food business." He re-membered.

TODAY, the Farmington Hills resident and his wife, Sandra, oper-ate the dell in Farmington, and own a dell'superette in Ann Arbor, now run by a full-time manager. Ajlouny

Please turn to Page 6

Rejuvenation eyed

Downtown Development Authority planned

Calling a Downtown Development Authority "a positive link," city planner Caristopher Waseny said Monday a Farmington DDA would be "the best way to capitalize on opportunities and to support the downtown."

Farmington CIV Council concurred, voiling unanimously Monday to establish a DDA for a proposed area surrounding the city's central business district (see related map).

A public hearing to discuss the proposed 'DDA ordinance and district fooddrain's scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. S at the begianing of the regular council meeting.

day, Feb. 3 at the beginning of the reg-ular council meeting.

The steering committee of the city-arpointed Downlown Farmington De-velopment. Committee (DFDC) task force Nov. 20 requested that the coun-cil form a DDA. Harry Wingerter, who chairs the steering committee, loid the council Monday of a strong, on-going downlown movement.

The DFDC has "continued to have good gatherings" with 40-50 people at-tending each meeting, he said.

WZACNY AND consultant Nick Ni-bolas will present downtown plans ulminating a nine-month downtown

The heavy black line outlines the proposed boundaries of Farmington's Downtown Development District. Please turn to Page 8

what's inside

Around Farmington . . Around Farmington 7B Business . 1-4B Cable connection 8B Club circuit . 10B Clus Classifiods . Secs. D.E Crossword 7E Entertainment 8-11C Footprints in history . 2A Hallways . 3A Opinion 14A Police/fire calls . 13A Readers' forum 10A Readers' forum . . . Recreation news . . . Travel 12C Suburban life 5-10B

CRIEATIVIE LIVING REAL ESTATE

And we have it. Every Thurs in our Creative Living Real Estate Section. You're