Writer can't hide problems

Dear Lorene:

I just happened onto your column last week and felt a reading by you may help me understand some serious emotional ups and downs over the past year.

I am a right-handed male and just beginning my 49th year of life. I hope your column continues as I'll be watching for it regularly.

Thank you.

Howell

Dear D.C.:

From the gestalt picture of your handwriting, it is evident you are experiencing some problems. Obviously you have not been able to meet the standards you expect of yourself. So you try concealing your shortcomings, both to yourself and to others.

Currently you are feeling pressure brought to bear by family and/or events of the past. Either you feel this is something you can't handle or that it is beyond your resolving.

It is very difficult for you to communicate what is bothering you. And by becoming secretive, you may be trying, subconsciously, to protect yourself.

The insincerity in your day-to-day living is causing inner tension and frustration for you. Preoccupation with material things seems evident. Is it possible some of these problems pertain directly to money?

You are sensitive to criticism, often anticipating it when none is even intended.

YOUR NATURAL inclination is toward self-motivation, planning ahead, productivity and keeping things in perspective. And a sense of pride has you doing and redoing to make things "right" and in line with your personal standards.

Interfering with all of this is some foot-dragging due in part to the vacillating emotional reactions in your everyday living.

Disciplining yourself is becoming more difficult, even with the control you are now exerting. Your peace-loving nature is being tested by a lack of inner calm and contentment.

Some of these insecurities may be the result of unresolved childhood scars. Seemingly you were raised in a home where your parents weren't together on the subject of guiding, nurturing and rearing children.

As a public service, readers are invited to have their handwriting analyzed. Write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, in care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And feedback is always welcome.

Columnist to speak at event

Sondra Gottlieb

Columnist and author Sondra Gottlieb will be the after-luncheon speaker for Sisterhood of Adat Shalom's "Donor Day," Tuesday, May 27, in the synagogue, 29901 Middlebelt.

The event begins at 10 a.m. for shopping and browsing amid a host of Souques. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. with reserved seating only, followed by the speaker.

Donor tickets, which range $20-250 can be purchased by calling the synagogue office, 851-3108, before May 20.

Gottlieb's column, "Dear Beverly," has been amusing readers of the Washington Post and several Canadian newspapers with colorful anecdotes on life in Washington, D.C.

since her husband became Canadian ambassador to the U.S.

Her latest book, "A Woman of Consequence," has won wide acclaim for its ironic observations on the world of international diplomacy.

Her autobiographical novel, "True Confessions" paints a whimsical picture of her early years in Winnipeg where, she writes, that her father found a husband for her at age 18 after she was fired from two jobs.

Gottlieb is a frequent contributor to newspapers and magazines in the U.S. and Canada with articles on women in politics, fat farms, travel, wines, the status consciousness of Washington and other subjects.
