Tips designed to save customers

Tips designed to save customers time and money are featured in Michian Bell's 1986 Frammon Hills Neighborhood telephone directory, which will be distributed in May, said Len Singer, local corporate nifairs manager. The Customer Guide pages, updated this year with larger type and clearer language, provide consumers with information such as how to save on long distance calls and take advantage of discount periods. In addition, the new guide includes special information for business euclies and products for diabeted customers.

Another new feature in the 1986 directory is the Senior Citizen Information section. Printed in larger type for easy reading, the section features information on mea services, outreach programs, hous-ing alternatives and energy assist-ance.

Also, Social Security and Medi-care information is provided to ex-plain important facts about bene-fits, coverage, eligibility and rates of the federal programs. Additionally, through a new Sen-lor Savings program, businesses which offer special discounts or services exclusively to customers 60 years or odder are identified. Scattered throughout the Yellow Pages are numerous consumer tips such as how to decrease heat-ing bills and how to measure a room for carpeting.

ington Training Center will receive a financial boost.
Nearly $6,000 was raised at the Kiwanis club's second annual benefit auction May 17 at the Farmington Training Center.
Proceeds will be divided between the Farmington Training Center and other Kiwanis-supported community projects. Most Kiwanis projects are youth-oriented.
Part of Farmington Public Schools, the training center offers programs for trainable mentally impaired children ages 14-26 who live in foster homes, group homes or regular homes and are bused to school.
