

Eucharistic Day Oct. 11

The Rev. William Westhoven of St. Paul of the Cross Monastery, 2333 Schoolcraft, Detroit, will speak at closing ceremonies of a Eucharistic Day planned for parishioners of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, Plymouth.

He will speak at the 7:30 p.m. service, Sunday, Oct. 11. Prayer and meditation before the Blessed Sacrament will begin after the 10:30 mass and will continue until this service.

Members of the parish will be asked to designate by card which half hour or hour they will be present.

The Eucharistic Day takes the place of the former Forty Hours Devotion which dates back to 1504. It commemorates the 40 hours that the body of Christ remained in the tomb. The devotion is a shortened form of the same order of prayer.

Center Has Bus Route

Shuttle bus service is now available in Farmington to the Jewish Community Center. The shuttle bus will leave the Hill School, 32200 Middlebelt, Monday through Thursday afternoons at 3:35 p.m. each school day.

The bus will drop children off at the 10 Mile Branch and the Main Branch, Meyers Rd., Detroit. In time for afternoon classes. The return shuttle bus will be from the main building

Now About That Pollution

The following announcement appeared this week in "The Magnet," newsletter of the Universalist-Unitarian Church of Farmington, to announce the church's program for 10 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 4.

We reprint it because it so well points up the problems of trying to do something—anything—about "Man's Natural Environment: Crisis through Abuse," which happens to be the topic of the program.

"Next Sunday morning, we invite you to eat breakfast, (leaving plenty of garbage to fill fast-disappearing garbage-fill areas), get dressed (in clothes you washed with detergents which will eventually turn the Great Lakes into a dead sea like Lake Erie), and drive your shiny car (which pumps pollutants into the air and may eventually produce an eternal cloud over our Earth) to that little church in the woods (sorry about those trees that had to make way for our parking lot.)

"There you will see a modern media program using film strips, a film (all using projectors running on electricity generated by gas-spewing coal furnaces), and readings to inspire you, enrage you and make you feel guilty.

"Afterwards you can drink coffee from styrofoam cups (which produce a deadly gas when burned) and smoke on your cigarettes (cough, cough.)"

PAUL MCNUTT

Evangelist Appears In Concert

Paul McNutt, known as America's Psalm Singer, will be heard in concert in the First Church of the Nazarene, 41600 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 4.

He will give a concert of church folk classics as well as Biblical Psalms. He will close the concert with a group of famous gospel songs.

McNutt's inspiration for the Psalms grew out of his being a guest soloist occasionally at a Hebrew synagogue in San Francisco.

McNutt graduated from Northwest Nazarene College with a degree in music. He also studied at the Cornish Conservatory in Seattle, Wash., and continued his training in San Francisco. He is a baritone.

Before entering the field of song evangelism, he spent 10 years directing music in the Church of the Nazarene. A native of Colorado, he is a veteran of both World War I and the Korean War, and now pilots his own airplane. His wife and two children make their home in Kansas City, Mo.

McNutt has traveled for the past 15 years, singing concerts across the nation and in several foreign countries.

The Rev. Ronald D. Moss, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend.

ECOLOGICAL RELECTIONS

By THE REV. PAUL D. BERSCHÉ
Northwest Christian & Missionary Alliance

A major concern in "the church" today is RELEVANCE!

Religious men work long, hard hours developing curriculums for "relevant Christian education in the church." The Detroit News carried an article recently that backs up a recent national study on church attendance and growth.

In summary, the national study and article agreed that Mr. Average Churchgoer is fed up to his ears with endeavors by the church to be more appealing and relevant by teaching lessons and preaching sermons about the most recent topics of ecological interest in our frustrated world.

Proof of this attitude is found in the fact that the more "relevant" churches are experiencing a definite, and somewhat alarming, decrease in attendance and growth, while those churches that teach and preach from the Bible how to live an exciting fulfilled life in our world are experiencing definite increases in attendance and growth!

I THINK this is sound evidence that man is seeking for reality! Men are intelligent beings and will not be lulled or soothed with "relevant" teaching and preaching.

I believe men today are seeking for reality in God because they have discovered for themselves that it cannot be found anywhere else!

Mr. Average Churchgoer is saying "tell it to me straight from the Bible—what does God say about purpose in life and the world?—enough of relevance!"

JESUS CHRIST was so irrelevant that they crucified Him!

The religionists of His day would not accept Him (like today) because they would have to revise their man-made "confessions of faith."

The rebels hoped He would overthrow the government, but Jesus refused to mount a revolution against the status quo! In fact, He honored the leadership of the government and showed his respect for their authority by paying taxes.

These men tried to get Jesus to solve man's problems man's way. Jesus refused, saying, "I have come that you might have life and that you might have it more meaningfully."

Furthermore, He said, "If any man puts his trust in me I will make his life to flow like a river." And again, He said, "If a man wants to get to let him come to me and I will not neglect him."

I believe this is the really "relevant" message men want and need to hear!

Rev. Lester Kinsolving's

Religion Update

"I never feared that the Palestinians would kill any of the people on the planes," said Jerusalem's Anglican Archbishop, "because the Arabs are human people; they are friendly people."

Just after the Most Rev. George Appleton addressed these remarks to the general board of the National Council of Churches meeting here, T. screens across the U.S. showed the arrival in New York of the first group of 421 victims of Arab air piracy.

A 13-year-old girl tried to tell what happened to her, but she broke down in tears—understandably, after five days under threat of death on a blistering air strip near Amman.

THESE KIDNAP VICTIMS had apparently been unable to share the archbishop's optimistic views about the friendly human Arabs. For they were the latest among hundreds of civilian air passengers who have been kidnapped by people described by the archbishop as having done "something that attracts the maximum publicity, something that shows their own determination and courage."

The same people were described by The New York Times as "savages unworthy of membership in the community of civilized nations."

ARCHBISHOP APPLETON is an elderly and gentle man—what is apparently an extraordinary tolerance for terrorists.

In his press conference here, he admitted that one of the priests in his jurisdiction "was involved in some way with what happened in that supermarket" (the blowing up of 19 civilians in Jerusalem). When asked if the killing of 19 civilians was not "a little less than Christian," he explained that it was "fairly clear" that while the priest, who he identified as the Rev. Ellis Hout, was not involved in the detailed planning, "being a Palestinian, his sympathies were with them."

He said a priest from Ramallah in the West Bank, was arrested in Jerusalem and after imprisonment released to Jordan. Rather than depositing (unfrocking) or even reprimanding him for being "involved" in this multiple murder, Archbishop Appleton confirmed reports that Hout is now an employee of the World Council of Churches in Amman.

IN HIS SPEECH in Phoenix, which was given a standing ovation) the Archbishop: • Tormed Israeli government evidence of Egyptian as the Rev. Ellis Hout, was not involved in the detailed planning, "being a Palestinian, his sympathies were with them."

Described Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat as "reported to be a reasonable man, not fanatical."

• Discussed the "sharing of Jerusalem" and guaranteeing of pre-1967 borders by "superior forces of the UN and the great powers." (Asked to explain how this could be accomplished, he replied: "This is a question I can't answer because I'm not a politician.")

When asked why, therefore, he had brought this subject up, he explained: "I report things that have been suggested. This is my job, not to take sides, but to understand and to interpret."

WHEN ASKED if any Arab Christian leader had ever publicly opposed either threats of genocide or air piracy, he answered: "I can't say. They naturally have to stay with their people and influence them in spiritual and ethical decisions."

Even in the realm of his own authority, Archbishop Appleton appeared indecisive. He merely expressed "anxiety" in reporting that Arab Anglicans in his jurisdiction may abandon use of the Old Testament because it contains the word "Israel" (which abandonment, he conceded, would logically involve abandonment of the New Testament as well, because it repeatedly mentions "King of the Jews").

The archbishop's address to the National Council of Churches contained no fewer than 69 political proposals or opinions. But when asked about the details or apparent contradictions in these proposals, he so often evaded the issue, confessed his ignorance of the subject, or excused himself as merely an "interpreter," that he attracted particular attention to one of his own statements: "I have to make a fool of myself by making suggestions."

WITH HIS ecclesiastical jurisdiction running from Iran to Morocco, it is obvious that were the Archbishop to take firm stands he might be excluded from Arab countries. But the man represented by the Archbishop lost his life (in Jerusalem) for publicly protesting such things as Temple graffiti and Pharisaic hypocrisy. He is not nearly as serious as piracy and murder of civilians.

What seems needed in the Middle East is a Christian leader, rather than an interpreter—either this or at least a pastor who does not make public political proposals which he is neither willing nor able to explain and defend.
