trying their hand at fine art for the first time. So it was a lot of give and take. We learned from one another, but that is how the whole Farmington club works — learning from one another."

Today her work hangs in private homes and collections throughout Michigan, Texas, California, New Jersey and New York. Her paintings have also been displayed and sold at Shelby Gallery in Houston, Texas, and in Print Gallery and Fred Grossman Gallery, both in Farmington Hills.

BARNES is a member of Livonia Art Club and Three-Cities Art Club as well as Farmington Artists Club and has amassed numerous awards for her work. She has taught painting with oils, acrylics and watercolor, in Farmington Community Center and Birmingham Community House. Many of her subjects are taken from her travels to the western part of the U.S.

Of all her honors and awards she cities winning a contest sponsored by Modern Maturity magazine as one of the finest. Her painting was one of 40 chosen from 10,000 entries in the national contest. The painting is now part of an exhibit traveling across the country.

Matovina's work has been displayed at Baker Street Interior Design, Federal Mogul Corp., Michigan State Fair, Farmington Community Center, Mercy Center and both Farmington branch libraries. Plymouth Public Library carries her work in its rental gallery.

One of her most recent commissions is the mural in Botsford Hospital's Pediatric Playroom.

Matovina has served as co-chair for the senior adults painting classes for the past two years.

During October Welsh had a work selected to appear in the Scarab Club's Watercolor Exhibition, and just before that won an honorable mention for her work in Palette & Brush's exhibit.

She has amassed awards through the years from Visual Arts Association of Livonia and Livonia Artists' Club, as well as Farmington Artists Club's shows.

SHOW HOURS for the fall exhibit are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free and refreshments are complimentary.

"The shows are given to introduce the high quality original fine arts created by both professional and semiprofessional members of our club," said Pat Langner, speaking for this year's show committee. "Many of our members are prominent and professional artists who enjoy statewide and nationwide recognition."

The club makes money on the show through its raffle to continue the senior adults' painting classes and the "Picture Lady" classes, which bring art enrichment to Farmington elementary school children.

This fall 10 Farmington Artists Club members have donated paintings to be raffled off late Sunday afternoon when the show closes.

Regina Engelhardt took both the first- and second- 'most popular' awards in last fall's art exhibit, the first Farmington Artists Club show she entered.

Farmington Players

Duncan Mein and Taraynn Razzog star in Farmington Players' production of "The Dining Room," which continues on weekends through Nov. 15 in the Players Barn on 12 Mile, between Farmington Road and Orchard Lake Road. The dining room is the setting for a series of vignettes, which tell the life-style and culture of America's upper middle class in the Players' first production of its 1986-87 season. Ticket information is given by Julie Austin, 626-0185.

Lakers endow ZOA as Balfour event nears

The Zionist Organization of America and the ZOA House in Tel Aviv, Israel are beneficiaries of a $50,000 gift from Irving and Beverly Laker, and the Laker Family.

Announcement of the gift was made by Sherwin Finkel, president of metro Detroit organization.

The funds will be used to establish an audio-visual room at the Tel Aviv house to showcase activities and give visitors historical films of the organization and American Zionism.

The Laker endowment also includes the production of a film depicting the 89-year history of the ZOA.

ters daily. It's cultural and artistic programs underscore the spiritual link between the U.S. and Israel and provides a platform for visiting American dignitaries.

Entertaining at the celebration will be two vocalists and one pianist.

Ofra Haza, known as Israel's first lady of song, won first prize among 13 contestants and will represent Israel at the Eurovision Song Contest in Munich. Her song "Israel Lives" captivated the nation. Her Yeminite Songs, a long-playing record, has been extremely successful.

Born in the poor Hatikvah Quarter of Tel Aviv, Haza took up theatre and music in a local workshop at age 12. After high school and the army, she embarked on a singing career and quickly rose to the top.

Gad Elon, another Israeli singer, is also an actor, dancer, master of ceremonies, comedian, balladeer and folksinger. His versatility comes from experience with one of Israel's most famous armed forces entertainment troupes.

Elon has appeared in Shakespeare, musical comedy, nightclubs and other media.

Jeffery Biegel, pianist, received the Juilliard School's prestigious

William Fetschek Piano Debut Award in 1986. Last year he won the University of Maryland International Piano Festival and Competition. In 1984 he was a prize winner at the Leeds Competition in England.

Son of a New York City policeman, Biegel is working on his doctorate at Juilliard. He has performed with the National Symphony Orchestra and the Juilliard Philharmonia.

Mack Pitt's Orchestra will also play for the 7:30 p.m. performance.

Reservations can be arranged by calling the Zionist Cultural Center in Southfield at 569-1515.

Seminar on grief, coping is Nov. 8

The Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College will sponsor a daylong program called Grief and Coping.
