Which Witch Is Our Gundella?

By MARGARET MILLER
Women's Editor

Gundella the witch is a believer in mind-over-matter.

"My definition of casting a spell is putting in someone else's mind a thought that's in yours. I believe in positive thinking AND negative thinking."

She's a pragmatist.

"I would advise that you start with small spells and work up."

She's a humorist.

"Why should spells be cast at midnight? Because most magic is done by women, and that's the only time most women can find 15 minutes to themselves."

But a claimant to supernatural powers she's definitely not.

"I do not believe I have power different from others. You have a power, and when you believe it, you can use it."

"My belief is that eventually there will be no such word as magic. Science will explain all."

These ideas and quite a few more were put before women of the Redford Suburban League at their meeting last week by the increasingly-famous Gundella, also known as a Gaudin City witch named Mario Kucio.

If your teenager makes rude noises when you listen to WIID-1090... Andy Williams, Henry Mancini, Percy Faith and Barbra Streisand would consider it a personal favor if you gave him a good swift kick.

In his Joe Cocker album.
