Farmington High School students will once again take to the stage with their production of
"Annie Get Your Gun."

The musical, written by Irving Berlin, will be performed on March 19, 20, 25 and 26, with a matince March 17 for middle school students.

Funding of the production will be handled by the school choir, as it was for Farmington High's last two musicals, "Oklahoma," and "Guys and Dolls."

Cast selections were made in December, and enhearsals began about three weeks ago.

The character "sharpshooting Annie Oakley" is being played by senior Katie Kretler.

"I'm really thrilled to be a part of this musical," she said, "and I loope that the group spirit reaches the point that the last musical's did."

The male lead, Frank Butler, will be played by Dave Fazzini, with Stephanie Bedikian as second female lead, Dolby Tate. Second male lead, Charlie, will be played by Charlie Jawor.

Says Bedikian, "We're trying very hard to make this musical a success and I know we're going to do it! All of the characters are really talented and fun to rehease with."

Description in the popinion, high school kids deserve a showcase for their talents. She likes to get involved with the musicals because she feels that they increase student self-suscend and confidence. But she dislikes the many hours they require her to spend away from home.

ONE THING Koltz does not want to repeat in "Annin feel Your Gun" is: "In the last pouriest."

MARGARET KOLTZ, director and coordinator of "Annie Get Your Gun," also has high hopes for the musical. She has directed three musicals for Farmington Iligh.

"The reason I chose 'Annie Get Your Gun,' " she said, "is because I feel that it is a good musical for high school kids. It's a clean-cut, wholesome, American musical."

Her one concern is that presently there is a shortage of male actors and she encourages inter-ested Farmington High students to contact her.

Koltz chose to get involved in her first musical at Farmington High, "Oklahoma," eight years ago

ONE THING Koltz does not want to repeat in "Annie Get Your Gun," is: "In the last musical Guys and Dolls, I saw a bit of an attitude prob-lem among the actors, and I don't want to see it

"I feel that every person/actor is just as important as the next."

As far as "Annie Get Your Gun" goes, Koltz wants it to be as good, if not better, than the other two musicals she has done at Farmington High School. And senior Kelly Vroman, understudy to the second female lead, backs her up all the way.

Says Vroman, "I'm really enthusiastic about this musical. It's going to be a terrific production and an outstanding part of my senior year!"

Botsford Center holds blood drive

A blood drive to help alleviate a serious blood shortage in southeast-ern Michigan will be held from 5 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Feb. 5.

The drive will take place in Bots-ford General Hospital's Communi-ty Center within the Administra-tion and Education Building, 28050 Grand River, Farmington Hills.

The blood drive is co-sponsored by Botsford and the Farmington/ Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"THIS IS the first time we've combined offorts with the chamber of commerce to get the word out to the business community requesting support for a Botsford blood drive," said william Shile, the hospital's assistant vice president.

Some 2,300 postcards were sent to area husinesses requesting do-nors to help replenish southeastern Michigan blood supplies.

"There is never a time when blood is not needed. Donations are on their way to patients within 24 hours," said Noreen Peterson, Red Cross assistant director of public affairs. on their way to patients within 24 hours," said Norcen Peterson, Red The Cross assistant director of public affairs.

"At this time, there is a special need for B-positive and B-negative blood, and type O is always in demand because O-positive is the

THE CO-OP blood drive effort was organized to try to inform a larger number of people about the drive, thus increasing donations, Shile said.
