CROP

Walking to alleviate hunger

Brewster Gere, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Farmington, led a small pack of runners Sunday, trailed by several hundred walkers who followed a 10-kilometer route in the CROP Walk against hunger.

Walkers created a festive air in downtown Farmington carrying balloons and placards on their trek to bring in the pledges that will be used in part for hunger relief, agriculture education, social and economic development through Church World Services. Another portion of the money collected will be used here for Head Start and to stock Farmington Salvation Army's pantry.

The festive air started and wound up in First Methodist Church of Farmington where walkers signed up and then returned to pick up fruit drinks, apples and their certificate that read "Because you walked, you have helped others around the block, and around the world."

Workers in the host church estimated they had about $12,750 in pledges late Sunday afternoon, better than last year, and they know more money will be coming in throughout the week.

In addition to First Presbyterian and First Methodist churches, walkers represented Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Trinity Episcopal Church, St. John Lutheran Church, St. Coleman Catholic Church, Nardin Park Methodist Church, Salem United Church of Christ, West Bloomfield United Methodist Church, Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, Orchard United Methodist, Head Start, Oakland Community College, and several Boy Scout troops.

CROP Walks were made simultaneously in Southfield and Birmingham. Chair for the CROP Walk here is Judy Houser of Orchard United Methodist Church.

Even dogs were part of the CROP Walk; at least Brad Snider's dog Max was. The 8-year-old walked for Orchard United Methodist Church.
