

Orchestra to play farewell concert

Even though violinist Misha Rachlevsky has been disappointed with the financial support that his New American Chamber Orchestra has received in Detroit, he is still paying his dues.

The board and members of the Franklin Community Church have allowed Rachlevsky and his orchestra to practice in whatever room or hall they chose and almost whatever they chose, for the past three years.

Now that the internationally renowned group has made up its mind to leave the Detroit area for greener pastures, their final concert will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 26, at the Franklin church.

The entire proceeds will be given to the organ replacement fund, with Rachlevsky and the chamber group offering their wide-ranging musical program as a thank you to the church.

Although this is the third year that the orchestra has played, not for its supper, but for its room rent, the selections for the May 26 concert are substantially different from preceding programs.

They include Elgar's Serenade in E Op. 20; Shostakovich's Chamber Symphony, Op. 110bis; Bach's Concerto for No. 1, from the Art of the Fugue, followed by Puccini's Cris-tianini and Schumann's Quartet No. 3 in A Major, arranged for string orchestra.

In spite of the interest generated by a feature story in the American Scene section of the May 2 Time magazine, the plan to leave this area has been firmly set for May 27, the day after the Franklin Church concert.

The artists will however, participate in a reception given by the hosts from the music committee of the church and will be available for questions after the concert.

Tickets, $8 and $5 for students and seniors, will be at the door. The church is on the Village Green, Franklin and Wellington roads, Franklin.
