6 Seats At Stake

Four Democrats and two Republicans will go against strong challengers Nov. 5 in a campaign to keep their seats in the Michigan House of Representatives. It promises to give voters one of the liveliest races in years in the northwest suburbs of Detroit.

Rep. Louis C. Schmidt (R-Livonia), retired Clarenceville School District superintendent, faces the toughest challenge in former Rep. Marvin R. Stempien (D-Livonia), ousted by Schmidt two years ago.

STEMPIEN is running on his 1965-66 record of 28 bills passed, including a package of consumer protection laws, reapportionment of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, the state uninsured motorists fund, expanded interest-free college scholarships, eliminated loopholes in child custody matters, and other acts.

Schmidt, with a strong following in Livonia, is credited with five bills enacted in two years, some of a technical nature. One would permit Wayne County schools to contract for special education rather than provide their own facilities.

Schmidt defeated Stempien for the seat in the Gov. Romney landslide victory in 1966.

For next session, Stempien promises a state effort to provide more and better paid policemen and encourage county-wide crime fighting units, a highway safety program, more school aid, a fresh
