And they lived happily ever after.

Or did they?

Well... they would have, if the water heater had been a glass-lined A. O. Smith model. But A. O. Smith's proven glass lining isn't the only reason. Unlike some manufacturers, A. O. Smith designs, evaluates and thoroughly tests each component of its water heaters. The result of this total engineering? Of the more than 10,000,000 home water heaters A. O. Smith has made, more than 99% are free of warranty claims. Too bad your unlucky housewife didn't know all this earlier!

There's another important thing about a water heater—a family can outgrow it. Especially if remodeling adds a dishwasher or extra bath to the hot water pipeline. A good way to protect yourself against these problems is to choose an A. O. Smith model with enough capacity for the future. All but the budget-priced models carry a full 10-year warranty.

Barrier

Our entire defensive backfield converged and gangtackled Hoss and down we went. The six of us went flying down to the ground with the skinny guard landing on his back and Hoss still driving forward when he landed.

THE SECOND EVENT occurred while we had a 6-0 lead coming into the third quarter by learning how to double up on Hoss. Our defensive tackle was detected clipping and we were set back 15 yards. Our coach automatically pulled any player using his fist and ordered our tackle to the bench.

I didn't understand why Dave would hit until I was sent in to play tackle and got a look at that 210-pound brute. Unlike Hoss, he was mean and nasty and particularly enjoyed sticking his fingers in faces.

The 80-pound edge proved too much and I couldn't move this behemoth. Instead, I tried to anticipate the play and slide around him into the hole I expected Hoss to be heading for. I was teaming with Jim, our defensive end, to high-low Hoss as he swept our way.

This tactic was slowing Hoss down and things were going pretty good until I guessed wrong and slid to the left and Hoss burst between tackle and center untouched by human hands for 13 yards and six points. Fortunately, we picked up six more points and my bad guess didn't cost us the game.

Halfway across the field, as the stands were emptying, I felt the cool night air feeling cooler around my knees. I looked down and saw my pants sliding graciously downwards.

It became evident that those skinny guards can make it but the guard whose waist is not sufficiently wide to hold up his pants has little chance.

At the Center

Farmington is invited to an outdoor, old-fashioned carol sing to be conducted by Max Davey on the terrace at the Farmington Community Center Dec. 18 at 8 p.m.

With Davey will be his choir from Ward Memorial Presbyterian Church. Open house will be held inside the center following the program with coffee and hot chocolate.

This occasion will give the community an opportunity to exchange holiday greetings and to see the beautiful job several organizations have done with the house decorations.

FESTIVE HOLIDAY decorations have transformed the center into a delightful Christmas scene. Garden clubs have been responsible for the living trees which include Hill and Dale, Forest Park, and Riverwood, a Southfield-based club.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Adelaide Henke, Christmas fashioned wreaths while Campfire Girls produced ornaments for the trees.

Girl Scouts were Mrs. Vickie Parks, Troop 258, Troop 85 led by Mrs. Gail Hamilton, Mrs. Diane Lickety, and Mrs. Heinz; Troop 70 of Mrs. H. Pilo and Mrs.

Focus On 3 Lakes

The condition of the inland lakes will be the focus for the program presented by the League of Women Voters of West Bloomfield-Farmington on Dec. 15 in the West Bloomfield Township library on Orchard Lake Rd.

Mrs. Olga Weir is chairman of the committee which has studied Orchard Lake, Sylvan Lake and Morris Lake and will present their findings.

A program of action has been adopted for Walnut Lake, and this program will be explained and discussed. The committee will also present slides on loam from Cranbrook and discuss the quality of water.

Mrs. Weir feels that action can be and should be taken on the part of citizens in this area in connection with the water quality.

The League meeting is open to the public and baby sitting is provided in the West Bloomfield Baptist Church just north of the library on the corner of Orchard Lake and Green Rds.

Sandwiches and cookies are served at noon and the meeting begins at 12:30.
