Booklet helpful to disabled travelers

AP — Two booklets full of helpful hints are available for two groups on the go — the disabled air traveler and the do-it-yourself mover.

For the wheelchair set, there is information about rights under the law and the need to plan ahead carefully for the trip. For example, when making reservations, tell the airline what kind of assistance will be needed when boarding and whether a bulkhead seat or an aisle seat with fold-up or removable arms is preferred. The booklet also lists amenities available on major U.S. and international carriers.

Baptists welcome new minister

The Rev. Kan K. Wingenroth comes from New Glarus Baptist Bible Church (Wisconsin) to pastor for the congregation of Farmington Hills Baptist Church.

He is a licensed pilot, a basketball and tennis player, a fisherman, a water skier and golfer.

After earning his degree in business administration from Bob Jones University, Wingenroth worked as a sales representative for a corporation in his native Pennsylvania, and simultaneously was active in his home church acting and working with youth.

"For months a conviction within my heart continued to increase until I became certain that the Lord was calling me to full-time ministry," he said. "After consultation with my pastor I decided to enter Bible college."

Wingenroth attended Baptist Bible College in Clarks Summit, Pa., and then entered Baptist Bible School of Theology where he earned his master of divinity degree in 1977.

He has been active in establishing a branch church served as a youth director, Sunday School teacher, Sunday School superintendent, song leader and vision coordinator. He served as Bible teacher for Emmanuel Baptist High School and in structure for Emmanuel Baptist Bible Institute in Toledo, Ohio, before becoming senior pastor for New Glarus Baptist Bible Church.

Wingenroth is married to the former Debby Kreuger. The couple have two children, Allissa and Matthew.

FARMINGTON Hills Baptist Church got its start in the late 1940s with services in East Junior High School and moved to its facilities at 28301 Middlebelt in 1970.

The church is associated with Conservative Baptist Association of America.

Wingenroth comes to the church following a 18 month interim pastorate held by Pastor Roger Campbell.

"Pastor Wingenroth is a man devoted to the ministry and sees his ministry as being a shepherd to his congregation," said Dennis King, a member of Farmington Hills Baptist Church. "He is a people person who is interested in helping people grow in their Christian experience."

King said the church "is characterized by about 250-300 people who form a loving caring community of Christians who welcome anyone who wish to join with us. The emphasis is on growing in the Christian experience by Bible study and Christian fellowship and encouragement."

The church offers a complete program for all ages and members of the family. It seeks to minister to the needs of children through Sunday School, Wednesday evening youth programs, Children's Church and special events.

Dan Marlowe is senior high youth minister and Kevin Mathew is junior high youth minister. The church also supports an active program for those of college age.

It offers a program for senior adults and a Friday Women's Focus ministering to the needs of women through guest speakers.

The Brian Wingenroth family is made up of Matthew, Deborah, the new pastor of Farmington Hills Baptist Church, and Allissa. Rev. Wingenroth delivered his first sermon to his new congregation early this month.
