Show explores city-like stores

While many people have worked at a cirks or cashlers for relatil stores, they often don't thunk of the diverse job possibilities these or ganizations offer. Yet, Perry Freelon, employment specialist for Meijer, Inc., says a retail operation is like a city, requiring a variety of

"We have almost a whole build-"We nave almost a wnote butter ing full of computer professionals, and we also have our own legal staff," says Freeton. In addition, Meijer employs truck drivers, warehouse workers, accountants and office clerks.

conter opportunities in retail or-ganizations are discussed on the weekly cable television program "The Job Show," airing at 630 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 9, on Metrovision Channel 12.

Success in an organization such as Meljer requires that employees be comfortable around people, says Freelon. They need to be able to communicate ideas effectively and concisely. And a friendly smile never hurts."

Everyone who works in a store, including the store manager, must be prepared to work a variety of hours, says Freelon.

"Many of our customers work nine to five, Monday through Fri-day," he says. "They shop on even-ings, they shop on weekends. We find that even on Sunday business has grown. That's when we need

FREELON SEES opportunities for advancement in an organization such as Meijer. He suggests that a degree in business, merchandising, management or communication would provide skills necessary to be a good manager.

"Because of the activity with customers and the fact you are making decisions very rapidly, it can be an exciting career," says Freelon.

The communications industry The communications industry also offers diverse and exciting career opportunities in a highly competitive field. The second segment of this edition of "The Job Show" highlights an upcoming seminar on careers in communications.

The day-long events of Commu-nications '69 feature 12 panel dis-cussions of interest to a variety of professional communicators, from journalists to technical writers, from advertising executives to in-dustrial video producers.

The seminar will be Saturday, Feb. 25, at Fairlane Manor in Dearborn. Registration is 8-8:45 a.m. The seminar starts at 9:15 a.m.

"The Job Show," produced as a public service by the Michigan Em-ployment Security Commission, provides information each week on a variety of career and educational opportunities.
