

Sturtz, Hakala return

The catcher suffered a dislocated left shoulder twice while playing hockey last winter, and he won't be ready to play until the end of April, according to Horwitz. Hakala hit .335 but was reliable in key situations.

"He's a good catcher if we can get him healthy," he said. "He was a better ballplayer than his average indicates. He was real good at coming through with the key hit."

In the meantime, senior Mark Dorfman, who played outfield on the JV team, will replace Hakala behind the plate.

THE RAIDERS graduated their top three pitchers, Rick Raehner, Andy Drake and Bob Butchick, and anyone Horwitz puts on the mound will be untested at the varsity level. The top pitchers appear to be junior right-hander Paul Anders, who played two years on the JV, and sophomore left-hander Andrew Margolick.

"(Anders) is going to have to learn quick and find out he can't throw all fastballs," Horwitz said. "(Margolick) has a lot of junk and throws pretty good. We're going to have to give him a shot. I think he can do it."

Other pitchers are seniors Jack Herberholz and Tim McEvilly, junior Jeff Hejce and sophomore Chris White, who will be the starting shortstop. Horwitz calls Herberholz a "fantastic ballplayer," but he has never played at North. He is transferred back and forth from Redford Catholic Central and has never been eligible.

Senior Steve Fitzpatrick will start at first base, and junior T.J. Orman, who will bat in the lead-off spot, at second base. Both are moving up from the JV.

Horwitz has high expectations for White, who also starred in football and basketball for North.

"I THINK he's going to be one of the premier shortstops in the league," Horwitz said. "He's just an excellent athlete."

"He was good enough to play varsity last year, but we had so many seniors."

Third base was still a question mark last week, with either Hejce or junior Del Turken likely to get the starting job.

"People who don't know Jack are going to find out who he is," Horwitz said. "They already know Joe. Both are good defensive ballplayers."

North also will depend on the hitting of senior Craig Garzynski, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in football. He will be the designated hitter and also can play the outfield.

Former Falcon guides team

Doug Button, a 1982 graduate of Farmington High, returns to his former school this spring as coach of the boys tennis team.

Button, an assistant professional at the Farmington Tennis Club, is excited about guiding his alma mater.

Button, who has coached several adult travel teams, played one collegiate year at Palm Beach Junior College in Florida. He replaces Bill Wahlstrom.

"High school tennis is a lot more competitive," Button said. "There are a lot of young kids here who have great attitudes. You've got to tell them what you expect and usually I can get it from them. If you can't, you shouldn't coach."

ALTHOUGH BUTTON has no high school coaching experience, he believes he is well-qualified for the post.

"I can give a lot of motivation and spirit," he said. "There's talent on the team, but compared to other schools — which play year round — we need more motivation. Most guys who come to Farmington (High) are seasonal players, meaning they play tennis only in the spring. I'm looking to change that."

Farmington lost three of its four singles players, including No. 1 player Jim Vanderhill. Button must also find replacements at doubles play, where matches can be won or lost.

The top returnee is senior Scott Hawkins, a No. 2 doubles performer a year ago, who has earned the No. 1 singles job this spring.

A battle will be waged for the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions between seniors Sean Cahill and Tracy Walton, sophomores Ed McDonald and Manoj Trivedi and freshman Brad Gray. Of those five, the two not selected to play singles will drop to doubles play, making the Falcons' chances stronger there, Button said.

HAWKINS is a fine tennis player, but Button believes he'd be just as good in a number of sports because of his competitive spirit. He was a member of Farmington's swimming team last winter and a league champion in the 50-yard freestyle.

Hard-hitting Falcons aim for better defense

By Steve Kowalski

If Farmington High can pick up the softball as well as it can hit it, the Falcons might have an exciting 1989 season ahead of them.

Farmington batted about .270 as a team last year but committed 95 errors, and that's one of the reasons the Falcons finished 5-10 overall.

Coach Rich Roy Lopez Farmington can improve its won-loss record, and that means improvement in the field.

"Last year we hit the ball fairly well, and we always want to improve on that," Roy said. "Defensively, we've got to get better. We'd like to shoot for zero (errors). If we could cut our errors in half, that would be decent."

Farmington hosts Novi in a double-header today, so Roy might find out immediately if the fielding has improved. He already knows the Falcons swing mighty sticks, and no one swings a better one than senior outfielder Melissa Tisdale, a first-team All-Observer performer in 1988.

TISDALE BATTED .378 with four home runs and 25 RBI and will return to the No. 3 spot in the Falcons order. Other starters returning include infielder Michelle Miller, who batted .284 last year, and senior first baseman Kristen Norman, a .355 hitter.

Senior Lisa Rockafellow also returns to the pitching mound, but she might be more valuable at the plate where she hit .342 with 13 RBI. She was 3-12 as a pitcher, and Roy expects better numbers on the mound. If Rockafellow gets the ball over the plate, Farmington will hold its own.

"We'll score some runs," Roy said. "We've got the 2

(Muller), 3 (Tisdale) and 4 (Rockafellow) hitters back and the attitude seems good.

"I kind of forced Lisa into pitching a year ago, and she volunteered to pitch because we were weak there. She sacrificed herself for the team. She's worked on throwing it. She's been throwing inside the last couple months."

Roy needs to find replacements for five graduated seniors, including Kelli Ross. He has a talented group of players off the 1988 junior varsity team to choose from along with a transfer from Livonia Franklin, Jennifer McGlinch.

MARY BRISH AND Jennifer Curtis, who shared the catcher duties on the junior varsity might do the same on the varsity until someone outshines the other. Other standouts off the JV team include shortstop Lisa Raffle, Bonnie Wheelis and Kim Owczaryk.

McGlinch is a shortstop who played JV for Franklin, a counterpart of Farmington's in the Western Lakes Activities Association, last year.

Holdovers from Farmington's varsity unit include third baseman Marcy Hall, who was injured most of last spring, and utility player Bonnie Allen.

Farmington plays in the Lakes Division of the WLAA, and Roy knows what to expect from other teams. "I imagine Plymouth Salem will be tough in our division, and (Westland) John Glenn is always good," he said. "We can compete. I think we should be able to."

Marlins expect to contend

BESIDES LOSING three quarters of their infield — first baseman Missy McKenna, second baseman Molly McWood and shortstop Kristin Orlandini — to graduation, the Marlins also must replace catcher Nicki Fraser, who was on the all-Observer second team along with McKenna, Orlandini and Vial.

Sophomore Kim Reichard played varsity ball last year and was groomed for the position. While she must replace "a great varsity catcher," the fact the 5-foot-8 Reichard is six inches taller than Fraser should make a difference, according to Brown.

"She can cover the plate a little bit more," she said. "Nicki tended to be run over by a lot of runners, and I don't think Kim will be."

Joining Sayers and Albrecht in the outfield will be either junior Amlee Cox, who played JV ball, or freshman Marcy Eastman. Cox' effectiveness is reduced by weak knees, but she is a good fielder and has a consistent arm, Brown said, adding Eastman has obvious potential. Mersey's 14-player roster includes juniors Amy Miller and Jenny Shalal and sophomores Maura Phoney and Marybeth Misan.

"We have a lot of young kids who are filling some major spots, but I have a lot of confidence in them," Brown said. "I feel real good about this team and its attitude. I feel all 14 want to be there and want to play."

Hawks open with draw

Farmington Hills Harrison began the 1989 girls soccer season Friday with a 1-1 tie in a non-conference play at Novi.

The Hawks are hoping sophomore Lisa Voelker, a transfer from Birmingham Groves, will give them some much-needed offensive punch this year, and she scored their only goal in the opener.

She scored at the 10-minute mark of the first half following a corner kick by freshman Nikki Stratton. "She's our scorer," said Harrison coach Glenn Bruehan of Voelker.

The Hawks had to settle for a draw, however, after the host team tied the score early in the second half, capitalizing on a free-ball situation in front of the Harrison net.

"We played very well for early in the season," Bruehan said. "We're an improved team from last year. We still have a lot of things to work on, but we have a good crew this year."

Harrison, 0-0-1, is back in action Wednesday when it plays Millford Lakeland at 4 p.m. on the North Farmington field.

clarification

A story about the Farmington High School girls soccer team in the Thursday, March 30, issue of the Observer said Carrie Moler was a two-time All-American. Moler has never been named All-American but was a member of the All-Midwest team following the 1988 season.
