Injury-prone runner may need alternatives

Dear Myrna: I am a frustrated, injured runner. I run with three other women four days per week. I'm the only one who is always getting injured. I don't understand — my friends are all heavier than I am. I've elways been more athletic. It's dowaright embarrassing and bumiliating. Why me?

I've always been more athletic. It's dowaright embarrassing and homiliating, Why me?

I do sympathize with you.
It is downright embarrassing and humiliating.
Needless to day, we are not all born with the same bodies and the way you are built can affect your attitude and performance. Why couldn't you have picked three other friends with your same problem? Just kidding!
Women with long, thin bones and little muscle tend to be fast, long-distance runners. Those with denser bones and bigger muscles are often slower on their feet. But thicker-boned frames also may protect the more compact women from stress fractures. (I'm assuming stress fractures are a good part of your problem).
When it comes down to injuries like leg fractures, dense bones are stronger and less apt to give way. Also, most of us are born with a minute structural flaws that make us more vulnerable to injury. The sad news is you might have to give up running. The sad news is you might have to give up running. The sad news is you might have to give up running, find a sport or activity that likes your body. First thing, find a sport or activity that likes your body.

I promise you there is a lot of activity out there.

Avoid impact activity — running, impact aerobies. Try swimming (it's summerly, walking, biking, low-impact aerobies.

Maybe your friends will join you. Tell them they need a change anyway — you must vary your activity.

Who's talking turkey now?

Walt, I plead no contest. Maybe I should plead insanity. I'm confused. I was hunting in the right area. But it turned out to be the wrong area. But it wasn't my fault.

I'm innocent.

Yen, and it wasn't my fault.
Yen, and it wasn't will and it wasn't will all and it was loading the woods around noon on the second day of the spring wild turkey cason after a hard morning in pursuit of a Michigan wild turkey cason after a hard morning in pursuit of a Michigan gobiler. After putting my gun and accessories away, I sat down in the car for a sandwich. As I began eating, a conservation officer pulled up for a routine check. I greeted her with a friendly helio and gladly handed over my back-tag, passbook and turkey permit. I was legal. I handthing to hid. I'm innocent.
We exchanged small talk. "Any head."

"Not yet, I heard a few, but couldn't call them in. Many birds been checked in yet?"
"Yeah. They checked in 10 birds opening day, all over 20 pounds."

THEN SHE dropped the bomb.

THEN SHE dropped the bomb.

Area Y? Is that a leftouer hunt?

"No, I think that's the Barry State Game Area," I replied.

After checking her application guide she reassured me that Area Y definitely was the hunt at the Barry State Game Area. She then asked sternly, "Why are you hunting in the wrong area?"

"The wrong area." I stammered.
"The mot in the wrong area. This is area X."

I'm innocent.
"It sure is area X. And your permit is for area Y."
"What," I exclaimed. "Area Y?
Are you sure?"
I checked the permit and she was absolutely right. But here is where I plead my innocence.

IN THE PAST, I had applied for a turkey permit on the buddy-system with my brother John. That way, elter we both hunted or nether one of the buddy system with the buddy system of the system of didn't get an application in time. Knowing that I wouldn't ravel all the way up north to hunt alone, but having already spent $13 on an application, I decided to apply for a permit to hunt the Waterloo Recreation Area. I have relatives who live in that area so even though I have to hunt alone, at least I'd have company after leaving the woods.

I remember the hunt numbers I applied for by heart; first choice—hunt No. 51, second choice—bunt No. 52, third choice—hunt No. 53. All three of these hunts are scheduled exclusively for Area X—not

WHEN I RECEIVED the permit I didn't bother to check the area. I knew I only applied for Area X, so naturally, the permit had to be for Area X. All checked was the date the hunt would be held. Prior to the season I scouled the territory and never gave the permit another thusby.

Print to the Season I stonder the territory and never gave the permit another thought.

I was in, blocated a Tom, called and called and called, got too and rious and missed my very first abot at gobbler.

I was back in the woods at 5 a.m. on the second day of the season and had still not given the permit another thought. Not until the CO gave me reason to consider the area.

er thought. Not until the CO gave me reason to consider the area. Now I was looking at the possibility of a $50 fine and leeing my license for the year. Thank goodness I badn't bagged a bird, then I would have been charged $1,000 in restitution plus fines. I would have lost the bird and I would have lost the bird and I would have lost the bird and I would have lost my license to hunt for three years. All this grief and an innocent man.

FORTUNATELY, THE OFFICER was realistle. I pointed out that I had parked not 100 yards from the Park Office. Had I been sneaking into the area I certainly wouldn't hunt in front of the park headquarters. I also explained the entire situation, in-cluding my brother's procrastina-tion, my relatives' proximity to the area and the reason I applied only for Area X.

tion, my relatives' proximity to the area and the reason I applied only for Area X.

She weighed all the evidence, then, after what seemed like an eternity, turned and gave me serious look.

"Mr. Parker, I reculty don't know why, but I'm not going to urrice you a ticket," said the CO, who, at that moment, I wanded to invite home for dinner. "But you know, you're out of here."

See, I am innocent. I thanked beragain and got out of there before she changed her mind.

I damit, I was gully of not paying attention. I should have checked the entire permit when I received it, but instead I assumed something.

Somehow, there was a foulty instead of the wrong number (very unlikely because I double-checked my choices) or there was a problem in the selection process at the Department of Natural Resources leadquarters in Landsoned here, and Dut a was soon forget: Nothing is guaranteed. Everything should be checked and nothing assumed, especially if it could put your neck on the line.

Optimism soars with cage recruits

By C.J. Alsak stalf writer

It's far too early to make plans to at the 1990 National Junior College Athletic Association Division II men's basketball championships — isn'tit?

Listen to Lynn Reed, Oakland Community College's coach, and such a thought may not sound so out-

such a thought may not sound so outlandish.

"I'm really excited about our chanes." The OCC coach admitted after examining his list of returnees and newcomes.

But all coaches are bubbling with optimism during the recruiting season. And much of Reed's confidence is generated by a few maybes.

But there are enough certainties to convince one that the Raiders may indeed make a return trip to the NICAA II outnament next spring.

For one. Reed returns. It was in 1917 that he guided OCC to the NICAA II champlonship. Last seasea's disappointing 13-14 campaign cai only make him more determined thin ever to rebuild the Raiders.

Also, six players — 6-foot-3 Mike falley, 6-6 Tone Murphy, 6-4 Tim
Robinson. 6-6 Tim Maxifeld, 6-2 Ed T-sque and 6-2 Bobby Dinges — will beback, giving Reed an experienced nucleus to build upon.

HENT THERE are the redshirts

nesteus to build upon.

THEN THERE are the redshirts players in the program last year who didn't play. That includes 6-4 Fred Crumedy ("An explosive jumper," said Reed), from Florida; 6-0 Striling Stevens, from Saglanay, and 6-4 Mike Shelman, from Detroit. Now for the rest of the good pews — the recruits. Freshmen certain to be part of OcC's program next season are Earl Mack, a 5-11 guard, and Petro Ellis, a 6-3 forward, both from Pontine Northern; Wayne Pairis, a 6-4 forward from Walled Lale Western. John Bonner, a 6-8 traster who didn't play for Northwood Institute and will have two years of eligibility remaining; and 6-0 Roger Sheldon, from Rochester. The state OCC should have no trouble rebounding next season. But it doesn't end there. Reed has a few sizable transfers who could contribute hounding next season. But it doesn't end there. Reed has most of his players competing in a summer league in Filint. In spite of their talent, some of the freshmen may be redshirted. But that's not so bad; Tim Forfinski, a 6-farmington Hills Harrison grad who didn't play his first year at OCC, has been offered a scholarship at Urbana College in Ohlo after a solid 1988-39 season for OCC.

In addition, former OCC guard Scott Gusster has signed with Edinborough State in Pennsylvania; forward-guard bayld Chumley is going to Central State in Ponsylvania; for landers Morgan is weighing offers from Augustana (S.D.) College, Western Penn (Iowa) and Manchester (Ind.).
