Shasky shines as all-star

Top player 'A' game's top scorer

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Jennifer Shasky doesn't like being a show-off, but it was expected of her Saturday and show off she did.

The former Birmingham Marian star put on display the talents that earned her the title of Miss Basketball in the annual Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan all-star game.

Shasky scored a game-high 17 points and pulled down seven rebounds — all on the defensive glass — in the Class A girls contest at Eastern Michigan University's Bowen Field House.

Her efforts, however, occurred in a losing cause as the East team, which included Shasky, Rochester's Dawn Brooks and Plymouth Canton's Michelle Fortier, were beaten 74-69 by the West.

The Observer & Eccentric area was represented by Jill Extey of Plymouth Salem on the winning team, but winning wasn't the priority in this game.

"I THOUGHT this was a lot different," Shasky said. "When I was playing for Marian, we were playing to win; whereas, in an all-star game you're trying to show off yourself — and I'm not as good at showing off as I am trying to win."

While the main emphasis in such games is individual performance, Shasky was thinking about the score late in the game.

The West appeared on its way to an easy victory, but the East closed a 74-58 gap to five points in the final count. Shasky made both of her 3-point shots — the only triples of the game — during that final run.

That also capped what had been a solid second half for Shasky, who shot 50 percent (7-of-14) from the floor and also had four assists, two steals and one block. She added another 10 points after halftime.

"In that first half, I couldn't get comfortable," Shasky said. "I was real anxious. In the second half, especially toward the end, I started to get in a groove, and I felt I could make some shots.

"We're all stars from our own teams, and it's hard to be a role player when everyone is used to being the star. The idea is to have fun. It's not a do-or-die type of thing."

Nikki Beaudry of Flint Powers and the West team was named the most valuable player after scoring 13 points and grabbing a game-high nine rebounds. She was the only one with more rebounds than Shasky, though Dana Filzek of the East and Coquese Washington and Anne Brocker of the West had as many.

THE ENTIRE East team was slow to get rolling — Shasky scored its first field goal at 16:05 — and nerves were certainly a factor for many players. With the expectations that come with being labeled Miss Basketball, Shasky said she couldn't sleep Friday night and was anxious about how she would do.

"At first, I thought I should come in here and prove something," she said. "But all the other players were real nice, and they said 'We know you're Miss Basketball; just be yourself and play your game.'

"You always feel you can do better, but most of the time I'm trying to beat myself," she added. "It's in my own mind half the time."

Brooks, who was in the starting unit for the East along with Shasky, Traverse City's Wendy Merriman, Lansing Eastern's Nicole Keyton and Trenton's Stephanie Chaffin, scored eight points, grabbed five rebounds and also passed for three assists.

Brooks, who led the Falcons to a 23-2 record and the Class A quarterfinals last fall, had the right shooting touch. She, too, made 50 percent (4-of-8) of her field-goal attempts.

"Yesterday, I had a rough scrimmage, and I was just happy to get a shot," said Brooks. "They happened to go in and that was exciting."

BROOKS, WHO will play basketball at Adrian College, was impressed by the balanced scoring. Only Shasky and Keyton were in doubles for the East. The West had four two-digit scorers with Reba Thigpen of Flint Northern leading the way with 15.

"Looking at the stat sheet, I see the scoring was well-rounded, and that represents what an all-star game should be," Brooks said.

"I thought, with it being an all-star game, somebody would be shooting. This time everyone got the ball and did their thing."

Brooks, who averaged 14 points and eight rebounds for Rochester, admitted to having some of the same pre-game jitters that Shasky experienced.

"I was nervous (Friday), but my friends told me there would be so many good players that not everybody would be looking at just one player, I said, 'Yeah, it's just basketball and we all love to play.'

"The fact is was an all-star game made it pretty exciting," she added. "But when it came right down to it, it was just another game of basketball, and we went out there and played."

Basketball camp at OCC

John "Spider" Salley of the Detroit Pistons will be the featured speaker next month at the Oakland Community College Basketball Camp.

The one-week camp will take place Monday, July 24, through Friday, July 28, at the Orchard Ridge Campus. The camp is for boys age 8-17.

"We're excited about having (Salley) there and running the program for kids," said Tom Negoshian, the basketball coach at North Farmington High School and one of three camp instructors.

Salley, who will appear at two of the five sessions and explain his mental and physical approach to the game, will fly back from Italy and the National Basketball Association Tour to attend the camp, according to Negoshian.

"He's very committed to it and not only for one year," Negoshian said. "We hope it's the start of something that's going to continue for a number of years. He plans on returning as long as he's with the Pistons organization."

Bloomfield Hills Andover coach Rick Krisiski and veteran high school coach Bob Shoemaker will serve as camp instructors, too. Together, they have more than 30 years of camp experience.

The fee is $150 per person and, besides the daily instruction, includes a camp shirt, shorts, hat, an indoor-outdoor basketball and awards. The camp also promotes a smaller camper-to-instructor ratio.

Checks should be made payable to OCC Instructional Basketball Camp. Information can be obtained by writing to the camp at 27055 Orchard Lake Rd., Farmington Hills, 48018, or calling OCC at 471-7716.

The camp begins at 8:45 a.m. each day and concludes at 3:30 p.m. Campers will be grouped by age and ability within four divisions: Big Ten (8-10), college (11-12), NBA East (13-14) and NBA West (15-17).
