Eight area scouts capture the gold

At the annual meeting of Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council, 11 Senior Girl Scouts were awarded the Gold Award, the highest achievement in Girl Scouting. Eight were from the Farmington area. To earn the award, girls must explore careers, develop leadership, build on talents and skills, and conduct a service project in the community.

Susan Goodmanson, Jennifer Haupt, Lisa Palazzo, Jessica Underhill and Kristine Zapp completed their required hours of community service as a group. They chose as their project a songs workshop for younger girls.

The five designed the workshops with special parts taken by each girl: booking, manager, songs, leaders, technical recorder of tape, bibliography and resource materials. They provided an enrichment program for approximately 250 younger girls.

The scouts are all members of Senior Troop 1142. Their leader is Nadyne Haupt.

KARI ELLSWORTH, Adrienne Moccello and Suzanne Nagrant, all of Senior Troop 1784, chose environmental projects for their hours of community service. Troop leader for Troop 1784 is Ruth McKinnon.

Kari's project involved reconstruction of a nature trail at the Environmental Center at Fairview School. She worked with city offices and contracted to dig up and remove stumps, cut away overgrown, small plants and bushes, leveling the trail and spreading a new bed of wood chips.

Adrienne cleared a quarter-mile section of the River Rouge. She worked with the director of Heritage Park in clearing debris from the river and removing trees and branches to clear the stream.

Suzanne also worked in Heritage Park as her community service project. She cleared away branches, stumps and roots from the trail area, filled and leveled the pathway, and posted signs to identify harmful plants.
