

Emergency system offered monthly via cable

An emergency override system is a public service offered via cable television.

In the case of an emergency or disaster, the police departments of the cities of Farmington, Novi or Farmington Hills may override all television programming on any channel to relay a brief announcement.

Once a month, a test of this system will take place, rotating among the three cities. This message will be heard on all channels in all three cities of all cable subscribers.

What will happen is that the television channel will go black/gray. Next you will hear a loud tone. Then an authorized voice will be heard. "This is a test of the emergency override capability of your cable television system. This is only a test. Had this been an actual emergency, you would have been instructed as to the appropriate action by your local law enforcement officials. This concludes a test of the emergency override system."

Upon conclusion of the message, television programming resumes to the regularly scheduled program.

Tests scheduled for the rest of this year will be at 9 a.m. on Aug. 9, Sept. 6, Oct. 11, Nov. 8, Dec. 6. For further
