Crossover quartet opens season

CCS-Institute of Music and Dance announces the opening concert of its Faculty Artist Series at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 22, featuring the Prism Quartet. The performance will be at the CCS-Institute of Music and Dance, corner of John R and Kirby in Detroit's Cultural Center. The Prism Quartet, a saxophone and electronic MIDI ensemble, consists of Reginald Borik, Matthew Levy, Timothy Miller and Michael Whitcombe. The MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface) enables woodwind players to access all of the sound capabilities of synthesizers and digital samplers. Counted among Musical America's Outstanding Young Artists of 1989 and prize winners at the prestigious Fischhoff National Chamber Music Competition, the Prism Quartet is rapidly becoming one of America's premiere chamber ensembles. Yamaha Corporation of America has named the Prism Quartet "Yamaha Artists." Truly a crossover group, Prism draws its repertoire from original compositions, classical transcriptions, jazz, electronic, and avant garde 20th century compositions. The Sept. 22 performance will include works by Bach, Scott Joplin, Gary Nelson, Jean Baptiste Singelee and original compositions by quartet members. For ticket information, call 631-8770.
