

Cable crew to gather at pool

Wednesday, Sept. 20, we will be getting together at the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn, poolside at 5 p.m. Producers, crew and talent, even those who may not have been active lately, are encouraged to stop by and chat.

1989 workshop graduates of remote and studio reality should make an attempt to join in and meet others.

There is no place better and more accepting of the newly taught than on a television production team.

Our purpose is to teach and share what media is all about. Let us introduce ourselves to you once again. Our staff is a team also. We each have our special favorite areas. For example, ask Lark about promotion and set design, image projection and for the column, tell her about the show.

Tell Judy about your show and crew, for the newsletter, and about what you are willing to do, for the resource list.

Ask Mary for help putting your production together. Ask Donnell for tips on producing and organizing. Todd for special effects and trouble shooting on remote location, and Kevin for assistance taking your idea and developing it into a show. Ask our interns, Don, about Newscaster 12; and David about radio dramas.
