

County vote heavy against 2 proposals

Read their lips: No new taxes. Michigan voters resoundingly said no Tuesday to a pair of sales tax increases, even though each would have provided more money for schools.

By a 3-1 margin, voters rejected Proposal A, a half-cent sales tax increase backed by Gov. James Blanchard and the Michigan Education Association.

Statewide vote totals show Proposal A failed 1,337,473-515,795 despite a heavy advertising campaign, including a televised appeal from Blanchard.

Proposal A's heavy margin of defeat was considered a surprise. Pre-election polls showed voters nearly evenly divided on the issue.

Voters also rejected Proposal B, a 2-cent sales tax increase that would also have cut local property taxes for schools by a similar margin.

STATEWIDE results show Proposal B losing 1,390,428-437,287. Oakland County voters rejected Proposal A, 175,533-48,393 — or nearly 4-1. They rejected Proposal B, 191,447-22,801 — or nearly 9-1.

Despite backing from the state League of Women Voters, Proposal

B received little financial support, compared with its rival. Pre-election polls showed the proposal trailing by a heavy margin.

Proposal A backers mounted $3 million advertising campaigns but a series of last-minute opposing ads may have sealed its fate.

Anti-Proposal A television ads featuring former Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson aired free of charge on WDIV-TV, Channel 4, and WXYZ-TV, Channel 7, Detroit.

Maverick state Sen. Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit spent $1,000 of his own money on radio ads denouncing both proposals.

Farmington Hills insurance executive and former GOP gubernatorial nominee Richard Headrick said a lawsuit would have been filed to keep Proposal A from taking effect had it passed.

Proposal A supporters said the tax increase would have provided an estimated $400 million for schools statewide. Proposal B was seen as providing some $300 million more for schools.

Their rejection means the state sales tax will remain at its current 4-cent level.

Vote totals are unofficial, awaiting confirmation by the state elections division.

Some Oakland County communities had local issues, while others only had the two state-wide education proposals to decide.

Voters OK tax to fight landfill

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

Voters in Addison and Oxford townships sent a message to the Oakland County power structure, according to election officials:

"No landfill in our neighborhood, at least not without a fight."

Residents in both townships Tuesday voted to raise property taxes, if necessary, to fight plans to put a landfill in their back yards.

A member of the county's Solid Waste Task Force, however, said Wednesday he hopes residents can yet be convinced the landfill is in the public interest — regardless of its location.

"Hopefully, Addison and Oxford won't have to use those defense funds," said James G. Mcenanhan, an engineer involved in the county's solid waste management plan.

If the county addresses their concerns adequately and demonstrates that a well-designed landfill would not destroy their communities, "they won't have to sue us," said Mcenanhan, a resident of Union Lake.

A $200 MILLION landfill has been proposed by Oakland County to accommodate trash that is not recycled or incinerated. The landfill is part of the county's $470 million long-range plan for managing solid waste.

After more than a year of searching, the county's Solid Waste Task Force has narrowed the list of probable sites to five, including one in Oxford and another on the border between Oxford and Addison.

The other three sites are in Highland Township, where officials say they are ready for a special tax vote this spring if officials believe a defense fund is needed.

But Tuesday's vote would enable the townships to collectively raise almost $500,000 for the technical and legal assistance to fight putting the landfill at either site.

"I believe we sent a message to Pontiac," said Rose Ann MacGuire, supervisor of Oxford Township. "We don't want that landfill."

ABOUT 35 percent of the registered voters turned out to cast ballots 1,558 to 1,215 in favor of the tax increase. The measure raises property taxes by $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation and would cost the owner of a $100,000 house $50 per year.

The margin in favor of the tax increase should have been greater, MacGuire said, but some residents apparently thought they were voting on whether the landfill should be built in their community.

Some people thought they were saying "no" to the landfill, she said, when in fact they were voting "no" on the defense fund to fight it.

In Addison Township, residents voted 929 to 463 for higher taxes for the landfill defense fund.

"This was a very personal issue," said clerk Mary Ann Thompson. "They sent a clear message they are ready to fight rather than accept the landfill."

Something big is on the horizon . . .
