0

۹

a

 \oplus

taste buds chef Larry

Learning to love escargot

Let me preface this story by admitting that escargot, com-monly known as snalls, should usually be enjoyed during a fes-tive time.

You probably would have enjoyed this story and the accompanying recipes for the holidays. However, the holiday this year at the Janes Gang house was spent in the hospital because Dad broke his hip and encountered complications. Now that Dad Janes is well as his way to recovery. well on his way to recovery, I thought that now is as good a time as ever to do some celebrat-

You have to understand that I'm not much of an escargot fan. And until last week, a snall had never crossed paths with my wife. As a matter of fact, most of the folks I talk to feel the same

The thought of cating something slimy, yet chewy, direct from its shell, which served as a home, should be reserved for the nouveau riche or those with palates that identify with the consumption of thymus glands and sweetbreads.

UNTIL LAST WEEK, every UNTIL LAST WEER, every small ever consumed was chewy. As a matter of fact, the only redeening quality of my experiences in eating snalls was the delicious garlie butter that coult be mopped up with a hunk of French bread. The garlie butter and French bread was like a 7-Up chaser after a shot of hard liquor.

So in the midst of the holiday season and dealing with Dad's ill-ness, my best friend from Ann Ar-bor invited my wife and me over for an evening reprieve of good food, good wine and great compa-

When he asked me to bring along some escargot plates and tiny forks. I knew immediately the appetiter course wouldn't come close to appealing my wife and me, but I dutifully obliged and emerged from the fruit cellar with the requested equipment. Was I in for a surprise.

After cracking the first of many bottles of wine, I offered my help (as I usually do) in the kitchen. It was there I learned the background to the recipe I'm about to share.

about to saare.

My friend had picked up a copy of an old cookbook, from an unknown place called "Frog Hollow", and while thumble, discovered the recipe. As you will see for yourself, the recipe isn't anything special, but there was a paragraph preceding the recipe that stated how the author (a chef at some big-city eatery) prepared this snall recipe and that whenever he was involved to friends' houses for an eating orgy, was told to bring along this recipe for escargot.

LIKE ME, his friends knew that the chef excelled, and for-tunately for you and me, I seques-tered the recipe book on a trip to the washroom, fortunately, with a pencil and paper hidden in my pocket.

When the tray was passed and my wife saw the snails, she opied to pass, but after a little produing frunch to our chargrin) she sampled. It could have been another six snails between us, but she asked for more. The recipe is that good. As a matter of fact, it's not just that good, it's one of the best appetizer recipes I've ever bitten into.

And my New Year's gift to you, taken from a piece of scratch paper written on a toilet tank in Ann Arbor, I'm sure, will be one of the best you will ever try. So enjoy!

Trust me on this one, folks. You won't be disappointed.

See recipe Page 2B.

Computers come into the kitchen

By Bridgette M. Daniels stall writer

ECHNOLOGY IS invading every aspect of our lives and the microwave is not the only intruder in the kitchen. Recently home computers have began making an appear-computers have began manus.

Today's personal computers (PCs) not only supply recipes on data bases, but also dajust serving, give nutritional tips and do adjust serving, give nutritional tips and the grocery shopping for you.

Prodigy, a database created by Sears and IBM, is the latest to hit the market and the home. In the Detroit area, Great Scott has joined with Prodigy executives to provide a shopping service to customers.

ANYONE OWNING a PC and the Prodi-

ANYONE OWNING a PC and the Prodigy software can do all their grocery shopping at home and either pick up the order or have Circut Scott personnel deliver. Prodigy is hooked up to several businessess in this area including Sears, NBD, Comerica and Great Scott With the package a person can make all their travel arrangements, get weather forceasts, follow the stock market, send electronic mail all over the world, read news headlines, read ads or play interactive games.

On Oct. 2, 1989, the first Great Seott hook-up was made in the Detroil area in the home of Westland residents Harvey and Judie Walker. Judie Walker sald she uses Prodigy up to four hours a day, and does almost digy up to four hours a day, and does almost all of her grocery shopping with the com-

The second second

She said Prodigy has changed her buying habits.
"I tend to order more in bulk now because I don't have to carry it," she said.
"It's cheaper that way and I save money."

PAUL COLEMAN, Great Scott! head of advertising, said Prodigy helps customers save time as well as money. The program allows the user to visually walk down the alses and formulate a shopping list, which can be saved for future weeks. The user then sends in the order and sets the delivery time.

then sends in the order and sets the delivery time.

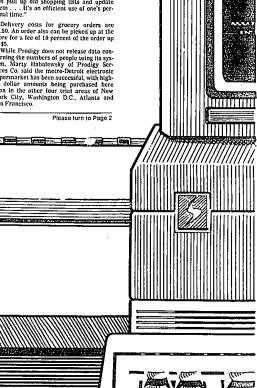

"Once you develop a shopping list, you save a lat of time, seeing that many customers order the same products week, after week." Cofemon said. "The entire process is more efficient as fra as time goes on. You have the control of the same products and update them and the same seed of the same to 55.

Delivery costs for grocery orders are $7.50. An order also can be picked up at the store for a fee of 10 percent of the order up to $5.

While Prodigy does not release data con-cerning the numbers of people using its sys-tem. Mary! Habslewsky of Prodigy Ser-vices Co. sald the metro-Detroit electronic supermarket has been successful, with high-er dollar amounts being purchased here than in the other four trial areas of New York City, Washington D.C., Atlanta and San Francisco.

Please turn to Page 2

Adventurous carryouts make a difference

By Ariene Funke pecial writer

Kick off your shoes, put up your feet and let Anna Stebbins prepare a deliclous, innovative dinner.

The menu? Let's have fresh salmon, jazzed up with fresh thyme and lemon and a topping of bread crumbs. We'll serve that with a past-a-and-fresh-vegetable blend lightly drizzled with olive oil.

Dessert will be freshly baked apple ple.

ple pic.

If that dinner sounds goods, you might want to visit a new gourmet carryout food store in Plymouth called Savery Fare Ltd. The shop is the brainchild of caterer and food enthusiast Stebbins. "We don't carry three and show or macaroni and cheese," said Stebbins, a Plymouth resident. "It's designed for people who want a little more adventure in their meals—people who like to try different things,"

SAVORY FARE Ltd. occupies a rear section of the Wine and Cheese Barn in downtown Plymouth. The food is prepared in the shop and sold by the piece or pound for carryout.

"I feel Plymoath has grown up enough," said Stebbins, "We have enough working couples who can come in and pick up dinner, His a viable concept. People are too busy to think about cooking."

Stebbins, who was born in Australia, Jrings a rich and varied background to her venture. Her mother came from New Zealand and her father was born in Texas. As a child, Siebbins gravitated toward unusual, chind food tastes.

"At that time Australia was a motting poi," Stebbins said.
When she was 21 Stebbins came to the United States and lived in Hawali, San Francisco and Phoenix before moving to Plymouth 12 years ago. Walle in Hawaii she faoriessly sampled such exotic fare as squid and gig's brains.

"I think it was at a loun, the time I ate pig's brains served directly out of the head," Stebbins said, with a laugh. "I pretended a lot and left fast."

flaugh. a presence of the flast."
Although Siebhins has held a variety of jobs, she derives her greatest satisfaction from preparing and serving delicious and eye-appealing food that live up to the shop's name — Savory Fare Ltd.

Anna Stebbins shows Nicoise Salad (left) and Vegetable Melange from her shop, Savory Fare, at the Wine and Cheese Barn in Plymouth.

SHE STARTED a home-based catering business in late 1988, using many organizational skills she learned white working as catering secretary and, later, catering director at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Stebbins' opened the shop last June. Catering parties still make up a large chunk of her business. Siebbins likes to create excite-ment by combining different tex-tures, tastes and colors in her food.

delicious apples and roasted hazelnuts with a creamy tarragon dressing.

"I can sense the taste in my mouth," Stebbins said of her ability to predict whether these combinations will be compatible.

Another favorrie is a chickon broccoil, said. It combines red grapes must and chunks of chickon and broccoil, covered with a creamy dill dressing. Or the bow-tle pasts said, which Stebbins mixes with baby shrimp, snow peas and red pepper strips drizzled with a sherry vinaligratie dressing.

Salad dressings are homemade.
Some of the dessert choices are pina colada cheesecake, apple ple, brownies and glant cookies and orange streusel mufilins.

Stebbins, who employs two parttime employees, does approximately 50 percent of the cooking herself.
She scours cookbooks and mage
streusel mufiles.

She scours cookbooks and mage
and tends chefs' demonstrations to cental chefs' demonstrations to cental tends chefs' demonstrations to cental

One particularly delicious salad pairs chunks of smoked turkey and strips of swiss cheese with sliced red delicious apples and roasted hazel-nuts with a creamy tarragon dress-

Please turn to Page 4