"Cocktails of West Bloomfield, the Broadway (menswear) of Birmingham, and Elaine's, also take part in the exciting extravaganzas.

"An essential part of the crew are the hairdressers and make-up persons who see that the models look as up-to-snuff as the glamorous outfits they wear.

At Southfield's Radisson, Rochelle of Mario Max, and Donna of the Met ibu Bodies, both in Farmington Hills lent their talents.

Marks admits that her training in the Israeli army has stood her in good stead when it comes to making instant decisions, a necessity that may be as elaborate as a segment some Broadway musicals.

"Presently, I am starting a new venture called 'Personal Shopper' for anyone who needs the service," she said. "I know the fashions, mens and women's and I plan to bring them to the client."

"I'm still producing shows, can bring in big names and have the know-how to do a lot to help charities with fund-raising."

Music competition for youth under way

Applications are now available for students in grades 7-12 who want to compete in Farmington Musicals' "Award for Excellence in Music."

The annual competition offers cash awards to youths who wish to further their music education.

The competition is open to students who attend a Farmington public, parochial or private school; to children or students of a Farmington Musicals member; and to those whose primary residence is in Farmington or Farmington Hills but attend school elsewhere.

Applications have been distributed to the music department heads in all the Farmington schools. They can also be obtained from Beverly Noftine, 476-1729.

The application forms must be completed and returned, postmarked by midnight, Saturday, March 17.

This year the competition will be Saturday, April 7, in Nardin Park United Methodist Church. Categories will be piano, instrumental and voice — subdivided into three age groups. Cash awards will be awarded in each division. Voice competition, however will be limited to high school students.

The Strey-McCallum Memorial Piano Award is a single award given to the student who is voted by the judges as the "most outstanding pianist," regardless of age division.

First place winners will be performing their winning composition in a recital in Farmington Hills Library Wednesday, May 2. Awards will be presented at this time, and the Strey-McCallum Award winner will be announced.

The Farmington Musicals is a member of the National Federation of Music Clubs.
