

Jenn-Air to introduce new dual fuel range

WHITE ON white is the look in kitchens and appliances in the '90s according to Jenn-Air. "The look is very European," said Mike McKimmy, director of builder sales at Jenn-Air Distributing. "Jenn-Air has an Italian design consultant who helps create the latest looks. The difference between the American look and the European look is the shape; European designs are more streamlined and less glitzy, using less chrome, cleaner lines and rounded handles."

Jenn-Air is introducing a dual fuel range at the builders show. This range features a gas down-draft cooktop and a 220-volt electric self-cleaning convection oven.

"THE NEW DUAL fuel range is the hottest new appliance. Gourmet cooks like gas top ranges because of the superior temperature control and higher energy efficiency that electric ranges don't have," added McKimmy.

Jenn-Air ranges also feature barbecues, griddles, wok attachments, rotisserie, slow-cook crock pot accessories, a canning element and a deep fryer.

A Jenn-Air chef will demonstrate how easy and fun it is to cook with the new ranges and ovens. He will be cooking chicken, sausages, orange roughy and baked breads right at the show.

Jenn-Air will also be displaying dishwashers, compactors and refrigerators. The dishwashers, which are manufactured by Maytag, allow loading of plates on the top or bottom racks. The tri-level zirconium porcelain tank is harder than most finishes and has a nichrome heating element that has no iron, thus lasting much longer. The best feature is that no pre-rinsing is required.
