Gourmets create a cookbook

The Farmington-Farmington Hills Welcome Wagon Club has compiled a new, menu-concept cookbook, now on sale, with all proceeds to benefit two local organizations, the Community Center of Farmington-Farmington Hills and the Children's Leukemar Foundation of Michigan, based in Southfield.

Reverty Costella, cookbook editor.

la Foundation of Michigan, pasco in Southfield.
Beverily Costello, cookbook editor, said the sale will serve as the club's annual charity fund-raiser and purchasers will be helping to support two worthy causes.
The Community Center, a privately supported, non-profit facility, provides cultural and enrichment activities upen to all area residents. The Children's Leukernia Foundator in through research and direct patient support, strives to improve the quality of care and life for both children and adults with leukernia and other blood disorders.

and adults with leukemia and other blood disorder. The unique feature of the cook-book, says Costello, is the menu style of presentation. A total of 117 com-plete menus, categorized by entree type, cover dining occasions from light luncheons and practical brunches to elegant dinners and fab-ulous feasts.
