well versed in working with at least 20 manufacturers for bridal gowns alone, not to mention bridesmaids and the prom line, or custom-mades for the mother of the bride, and they can match up accessories for the bride right down to her garter."

WHEN POLLAK and her daughter go on buying trips now, Pollak thinks of it as a perfect blend.

"She has a young taste. I have the European and traditional taste. It is a good mixture," she said.

Pollak's Bridal Salon has one quiet period from the first of November to the first of January every year.

"We have a busy 10 month season," Zimberg said. "After the first of the year the June brides start coming in — in droves — but most brides are here looking a year in advance."

Mother and daughter are both proud of their nine member staff and low turnover of personnel.

"We have five seamstresses that are busy all the time and four sales ladies who are all first quality bridal consultants," Zimberg said.

"They've all been trained in highly intense seminars to answer any question a bride could ask. They are

She's semifinalist

Courtney Kling, 14, of Farmington Hills appears in "Teen magazine's April issue as a Great Model Search regional semifinalist.

Of the approximately 24,000 entries received annually, only 480 are chosen as regional semifinalists. That's 16 per region for five months. The field is then narrowed to 96 super-semifinalists. And finally to 12 finalists. The finalists receive an all-expense-paid trip to the national finals.

The winner will appear on the cover of the October issue of "Teen."

If Courtney wins, she will be in a long line of successful models who have launched their careers on "Teen's cover. Past "Teen discoveries include Cheryl Tiegs, Cristina Ferrare and Kelly Harmon.

Slimming clinic opens

The Science of Slimming offers permanent weight loss through lifestyle change. The Science of Slimming bridges the gap between the weight loss clinics and the exercise facilities. The program is geared to help lose weight through behavior modification and the introduction of regular exercise.

Suzi's Clinic will open April 22 in the Downtown Farmington Center. The program will be a combination of diet, exercise and behavior modification. It promises quick, safe weight loss under the supervision of a physician.

The Science of Slimming program's main focus is lifestyle change.

"Anybody can lose weight, but keeping the weight is another matter," said Suzi Ran. "The key to keeping the weight off is lifestyle change."

To help make the lifestyle change, Monday is support group day. Wednesdays are behavior modification lectures, and Fridays are set aside to cover specific problems individuals may be experiencing. These lectures are at various times so working people will be able to attend.

The diet aspect of the program is designed for the individual. The ketogenic (fat-burning) concept is one aspect that is the same in each diet.

The fitness aspect of the program is also designed for each individual. Floating wood floors to guard against injury, and all the amenities needed for fun, productive exercise, including exercise bikes, rowing machines and stair climbers.

Pollak's Bridal Salon

first flag in Germany after World War II.

She opened her first salon the same year she arrived in Detroit 40 years ago.

"Some of my first customers have followed me out here," Pollak said.

"It is a good feeling for someone to say 'Do you remember me? Meet my granddaughter.' That client knows she's going to get a perfect fit for her granddaughter — even when we're handling ready-mades — there are very few girls built to fit one size perfectly and when she leaves here she will be a happy girl with the way that dress fits."

Pollak's Bridal Salon began handling ready-mades the same year Zimberg came into the business.

Zimberg had thought she was going to make a career in the medical field, but started giving full time to her mother's business when "things started sky-rocketing here," she said.

Mother and daughter are both proud of their nine member staff and low turnover of personnel.

"We have five seamstresses that are busy all the time and four sales ladies who are all first quality bridal consultants," Zimberg said.
