

This summer, think community access

Summertime is upon us. Those of you who are active in our community access television have just received our summer SWOCC newsletter, edited by Judy Kral. Reading our stories of what is going on will inspire everyone. Please note that the summertime is a perfect time to become acquainted with our television facilities. Because of vacation schedules and hot weather, there is more available prime-time use of facilities and staff, making it possible for a new person in television to receive more one-on-one time with staff. One of the most-frequent statements that we hear is, "I would love to help so I hope that someone calls me." or "I would have gotten more involved but no one ever called me." Remember that it is human nature to gravitate to those you know or have a common interest with. Therefore, if you are not in touch with anyone from community television, the odds are you may not be contacted. So call us. Our staff of both SWOCC and Metrovision are involved with resident and our own shows all the time. We will put on our thinking caps and link up with others of common goals. Let us help you stop procrastinating and start "doing." Call 473-7266.
