Rangers draft MSU goalie

By Dan O'Meara

Mike Gilmore hadn't thought much about playing professional hockey until Priday.

The Farmington Hills resident went to Michigan State as a walk-on goalkeeper, worked his way up from third string and is currently the backup to Jason Murzattl.

But Gilmore's long-term prospects got a shot-in-the-arm last week when the New York Rangers selected him 18th overall in the NHL supplemental draft.

tal draft.
Glimore, who appeared in 12
games for the Central Collegate Hockey Association champion Spar-tans, expects to remain at MSU for the time being, however.
"They more or tess drafted me to get the rights," said Glimore, a 1986 graduate of Redford Catholic Cen-tral and former Compuware Junior A player.

"I TALKED TO one of their scouts "ITALKED TO one of their scouts Clave McMabb, and he told me they liked my development so far and are cager to see what happens next year. He said they've been watching me the last couple years and believe I'll develop some more down the road." Gilmore, who was redshirted his first year, is a junior academically with two years of eligibility remaining, Muzzatii will be a senior next season, and Gilmore appears to be the heir apparent the following year.

"I've get one more year left on my undergraduate, and I'll take graduate courses my last year of hockey," be said. "I want to get my undergraduate out of the way before I deide to do anything NHI. wise."
"I don't want to count anything

Gilmore, who made the alt-CCIIA acadensic team with a 3.5 grade point average in engineering, puts school first.
"That's what my parents sent me
to college for, not to be an NHL player," he said, "although maybe that will happen."

"(Being stratted) told me some people were actually interested in my ability. It's nice to know people at that level have some interest in me."

Concealed Security tops Trenton

The first three linkings were all Farmington Concealed Security needed to knock the Trenton Travelers from the ranks of the unbeaten Thurday.

Concealed Security ravaged the Travelers for 11 runs in that span and rolled to an 11-5 victory in a Little Caesars Considered March Saseball game at Capitol Park.

Trenton (now 7-1) opened the secring with a two-run homer by John Torok in the top of the first inning.

Farmington (2-20) asswered with four runs in the bottom half of the landing, a rally that included run-secring singles by Paul Pirronello (from Farmington and Redford Catholic Central) and Shannon Deagan.

Concealed Security and a 5-2 lead after two innings, then exploded for six runs in the third.

Deagan had a two-run double in the inning. He finished with two hits and three runs batted in Partonello had two hits and three Hirs. Bed Brinsseau, a sophome-to-be at Modision College (from Redford Bishop) Horgess), had two hits and an HIII Louis McKaig was the warmag pitcher.
