Organize those prints and negs

How many times have you searched for a box of slides or set of prints from that special occasion years ago only to be stymied as to where you put them?

Do you have boxes of loose slides and drawers full of loose prints that are totally disorganized?

You're not alone. Many photographers regard the filing and storage of negatives, slides and prints as a disheartening task to be avoided.

Imagine how convenient it would be to have an organized filing system, to have your prints and negs

With careful storage of the negative Monte Nagler will be able to print and enjoy this photograph of Montemore Valley for a long time to come.

tives orderly, neat and readily available. It's easier than you think.

Over the years cardboard boxes will emit discernable amounts of gases and peroxides that will tarnish the silver in films and prints and cause fading and loss of picture detail.

The same is true for brown paper envelopes often used to hold prints and negatives. Glue in the seams of many envelopes can cause discoloration if it gets too close to the emulsion of a picture.

EVEN RUBBER bands wrapped around a roll of negatives or stack of prints contain compounds that can cause damage.

Here are some ideas on how to avoid these dangers and assure the safety of a photographer's most valuable possession — pictures and negatives.

Negatives: Care in preserving your prints must naturally begin with your negatives. Store them in transparent polyethylene holders which in turn can be stored in vinyl binders. Larger negatives can be placed in polyethylene sleeves and housed in small steel cabinets.

Polyethylene will resist moisture and won't decay or grow misty with age. Furthermore, contact sheets can be made of the negatives without removing them from the holders.

Speech help available

Children with language, articulation, voice or fluency impairments are eligible for a speech program being offered at St. Mary Hospital.

The facility's Speech Pathology Department is offering the summer

Prints: Sunlight fades and bleaches some color prints. To avoid this, spend a few extra dollars and have a Cibachrome or Fuji "Super Gloss" print made from your favorite slides or negatives. They will last for many years without any fading and will give you prints of superior quality.

When mounting your prints, be sure to use acid-free rag board. Acids in regular mounting boards will eventually cause discoloration to the board as well as your print.
