who have been competing for four years and had never gotten a chance to swim in the that meet.

"The kids understood that and accepted the challenge. (Swimming just the top girls) is not my philosophy as a coach."

The Marlins won all three relays, with Marlan finishing second each time. Mercy won the medley relay in 1:56.23, the 200 freestyle in 1:43.85 and the 400 freestyle in 3:53.12.

Other Mercy victors included Amy Dombrowski in diving, Linda Goldstein in the butterfly (1:30.45) and Joan Huellmantel in the breast stroke (1:12.57).

For Marlan, Sarah Brenner was second in the breast and fourth in the IM, while Angela Puchalsky was second in diving.

Bishop Foley was a distant third with 145 points, Harper Woods Regina was fourth with 132 and Livonia Ladywood rounded out the top five at 71.

Downs, who began at Marlan with 13 swimmers in 1988, was as surprised about the upset as anyone.

"I thought (the Marlins) were going to beat us by 30 points," he said. "Our swimmers moved up a few places and that helped out."

Of course, getting second, third and fourth places also helped.

"When you get those package deals," Downs said, "you're not losing too much. We were right behind them in most cases."

Area teams strive for state honors

Farmington Hills Mercy and North Farmington are expected to fare well once again at the Class A girls swimming and diving championships this weekend.

The Marlins were third in the state last year and two-time Western Lakes Activities Association champion North eighth.

Both teams will send large contingents to East Lansing for this year's meet in the Michigan State University pool. The competition begins Friday and continues Saturday.

The defending Class A champ, Ann Arbor Pioneer, and the 1989 runner-up, Ann Arbor Huron, are expected to be at the top again, but the rest of the field is considered wide open.

"Our team goal is to finish in the top eight," Mercy coach Teri Dudd-Testers said. "Looking at the 205 times, the Ann Arbor teams look the best. Nos. 3 through 8 are going to be a dogfight."

Other two-event swimmers for MERCY'S KATIE Knipper, who was third in the breast stroke last year, has qualified in the individual medley, butterfly and 100 freestyle. Linda Goldstein also will be a factor in how well the Marlins do, being qualified to swim any combination of the above events plus the backstroke and the breast stroke.

The Marlins had a swimmer qualify in every event, and all three relays will be compete at state, too.

Other individuals include Erica Smith (100 and 500 free), Polly Tenuta (200 and 500 free), Michelle McCaffrey (200 free), Andrea Hoeflein (breast) and Joan Huellmantel (breast). Amy Machacek and Patty Cahill are eligible for the relay events.

North senior Kerry Doran was second in the IM and fifth in the butterfly last year. She will probably swim the 200 and 500 freestyles this year, and she will participate in the medley and 400 freestyle relays.

Other two-event swimmers for

the Raiders are Karrie Kranz (200 and 100 free), Anna Palmer (breast and IM), Carrie Worthen (breast and IM) and Julianne Markey (100 free and back). Sherri Richardson is entered in the breast stroke.

In addition to Doran, the medley relay will include Markey, Palmer and Kranz, the 400 freestyle Richardson, Markey and Kranz. The Raiders also qualified three relays, and Jennifer Wagner, Richardson, Worthen and Shannon O'Brien are slated to swim the 200 freestyle.

"I THINK WE have excellent team prospects," North coach Pat Duddle said, adding the change in format that allows swimmers to enter four events will have an impact. "I don't know how it's all going to come out. I don't have a particular place in mind, but we are excited about our prospects as a team." Farmington's Jill Hawkins will compete in the 50 freestyle. She was second in the WLA and goes to state with a seed time of 25.68.

Freestyle relay will be Pam Pritchard, Chris Lang and Tami Santomauro. In the 400 freestyle, it will be Pritchard, Janet Roberts and April Billings.

The Chiefs also have three relays entered. Nicole Montrossor (back), Sarah Larson (breast) and Santomauro (free) will be on the medley team with either Jill Mellis or Lang swigimming the butterfly portion.

"The 200 freestyle has a good shot at placing in the top 12," Wellman said, "and Amy Kodrik and Becky Holsinger have a good chance to place in diving."

Kodrik was the WLA champion, and Wellman said he plans to submit a video tape of her performance in that meet for her to be considered for All-America honorable mention.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Power Middle School student Andrea Salyer averaged 18.7 points for the girls basketball team this year, accounting for 112 of its 158 total points during the six-game season.

The 5-foot-9 eighth grader scored seven points in Power's first two games but averaged 26 per game in the last four after moving from center to guard.

Salyer had a single-game high of 40 points in the team's only victory, a 47-37 win over Dunkel Middle School. She scored 21, 23 and 20 points in the other games. Power was 1-5.
