

Local woman to be featured on PBS show

Virginia Nichol will share with us an experience she just had with National PBS. Upon responding to a Free Press search for people who had lived during the depression of the 1930s, she was linked up with a television production company — Blackside Productions out of Boston, Mass.

Virginia was thankful for her community access experience even through the studio and lighting techniques were quite different with the commercial team.

On Monday, Jan. 7 — National PBS will host a program entitled the "American Experience." The theme is to capture women's contribution to this era.

Virginia spoke specifically of her mother, who has raised eight children and baked to earn money to put food on the table.

Virginia Nichol is the president of the Farmington Chapter of the Older Women's League and editor of the State Owl Newsletter. Issues that are receiving priority are:

- National Health Care Bill for Everyone
 - Social Security to Recognize Women
 - Housing for Older Women
 - Job and Wage Discrimination
 - Pension Equity.
- You may see Virginia Nichol on our own television series "Women on the Move," produced by Betty Schelling.
